Ford studies plan to prevent any involvement in assassinations

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford is formulating a plan to prevent U.S. involvement in plots to assassinate foreign leaders, his spokesman said today.

"He absolutely abhors government officials being involved in those kinds of things and he has forbidden officials in his administration from being involved," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters.

Nessen's statement was the first White House reaction to Thursday's report by the Senate intelligence committee saying the United States had instigated several schemes to kill foreign leaders and was implicated in at least one other.

Nessen refused to say what the President's plan was, but noted that files on U.S. involvement in the plotting had been turned over to the Justice Department for whatever action it considers necessary.

Apart from that, Nessen said Ford was not going to sit in judgment on things that happened in the past.

He said the President still feels publication of U.S. involvement in the assassination plots could damage foreign policy and national security and might endanger the lives of some U.S. officials.

Nessen did not name them, but the report contains the names of 10 persons including some officials of the government.

Justice Department officials are still weighing whether to bring charges against those involved in the assassination plots described by the committee.

Department officials are series of statutes for possible use in any prosecution, including a cover-up charge. A spokesman says that Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi will either seek indictments or publicly explain why not in a report on his department's investigation into all categories of alleged CIA wrongdoing.

In its 346-page report made public Thursday, the committee said U.S. officials had instigated at least eight assassination plots against Cuba's Fidel Castro and had launched another scheme to kill Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba. The panel also described the U.S. government as implicated in the killing of Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo.

Of the nine foreign leaders mentioned in the report, only Fidel Castro and his brother Raul are still alive.

But the committee said, "No foreign leaders were killed as a result of assassination plots initiated by officials of the United States."

Its report told of a CIA official at the agency's old Washington headquarters who was asked to develop plans to kill Lumumba in 1960 and raised the prospect "that conspiracy to commit murder being done in the District of Columbia might be in violation of federal law."

A second official, Richard Bissell, then head of the agency's clandestine services, "airily dismissed" the prospect, according to evidence submitted to the committee.

The Senate committee report, fruit of a still-incomplete, six-month investigation, was released by the panel after the Senate spurned appeals by the President to keep it secret. Ford wrote Senate leaders Thursday that publication would not be in the national interest.

In addition to the Castro and Lumumba plots and the Trujillo affair, government officials also were aware of plots against South Vietnamese president Ngo Dinh Diem and Chilean army chief Rene Schneider where "the risk of death" existed, the committee said.

The 11-member panel also said it came across "evidence of CIA involvement in plans to assassinate President Sukarno of Indonesia and 'Papa Doc' Duvalier of Haiti." Assassination plots against Castro "sometimes contemplated action against Raul Castro and Che Guevara" as well, the committee found.

According to the report, there was enough evidence "to permit a reasonable inference that the plot to assassinate Lumumba was authorized by President Eisenhower" but stopped short of a finding that "the President intended an assassination effort."

The committee also said

"there was insufficient evidence" that Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy or Johnson or any of their close advisers authorized the assassination of Castro.

The committee "found concrete evidence of at least eight plots involving the CIA to assassinate Fidel Castro from 1960 to 1965" using a variety of devices which "ran the gamut from high-powered rifles to poison pills, poison pens, deadly bacterial powders and other devices which strain the imagination." On at least two occasions the plots "progressed to the point of sending poison pills to Cuba and dispatching teams to commit the deed," the report said.

"The most ironic of these plots took place on Nov. 22, 1963—the very day that President Kennedy was shot in Dallas—when a CIA official offered a poison pen to a Cuban for use against Castro while at the same time an emissary from President Kennedy was meeting with Castro to explore the possibility of improved relations," it said.

One of the more bizarre plans against Castro involved attempts "to determine whether an exotic seashell rigged to explode could be deposited in an area where Castro commonly went skin diving." That plan and another scheme to present Castro with a contaminated diving suit were both abandoned, the report said.

Perhaps the most bizarre plot of all involved a scheme to simply embarrass Castro publicly by sprinkling his shoes with a powder that would make his beard fall out.

The committee's outline of the plot to poison Lumumba states that "it is likely that President Eisenhower's expression of strong concern about the man at a meeting of the National Security Council on Aug. 9, 1960, was taken by (then CIA director) Allen Dulles as authority to assassinate Lumumba."

Poison was transferred to the CIA station chief in Leopoldville, but never used, the committee said, concluding there was no connection between the plot and the events that led to Lumumba's death.

Grand jury panel is dismissed

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales Thursday dismissed the 23-member panel of grand jurors, who for six months had conducted a probe into alleged absentee voting irregularities in the April 15 Dixon city elections.

A report submitted to the court was ordered suppressed by Judge Bales "until further order of the court." The judge later said the contents of the report will be made public at the conclusion of legal proceedings against three defendants named in multi-count indictments returned by the grand jurors in September.

Accused of perjury, solicitation and unlawful observation of voting are Jim G. Burke, 317 Steele Ave.; Herb Dunphy, 711 Peoria Ave., and Alice Dempsey, 1119 W. Second St.

Circuit Judge James Vincent, Galena, earlier Thursday took under advisement defense motions to dismiss the indictments against Burke and Dunphy at the conclusion of oral arguments by Attorneys Henry Dixon and John Caluwaert.

Another defense motion to quash the indictments returned against Burke and Dunphy was argued by Dixon. The motion claims Charles Levad and Brian David, attorney-general lawyers, were "not properly appointed" as Lee County assistant state attorneys.

Still other defense motions were expected to be filed by Dixon, who claimed Thursday's grand jury session was "inappropriate action and of an intimidating nature" against his clients.

He maintained Judge Vincent was unaware of the grand jury, then in session, "dealing with the very thing we are discussing in here, and I will file the appropriate motions on this."

At one point during the grand jury discussion, Caluwaert tried to call David as a witness to testify on the content of the grand jury session. The prosecutor objected, saying "There is no issue at this time—no motion has been filed on which to testify."

Many Demos support his views, says Reagan

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)

—Ronald Reagan, on the second day of his official presidential campaign, said today he believes there are many Democrats as well as Republicans who support his political philosophies.

At a news conference, Reagan cited his election as governor twice in California where the Democrats have a 3-2 majority. Reagan said, "Obviously, there must have been a lot of Democrats who don't think I am out of the mainstream."

Reagan was responding to criticism Thursday by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who said Reagan should not challenge Ford for the nomination. Percy, a moderate, said Reagan's nomination would lead to a disastrous defeat for Republicans in November.

He also refused to criticize Ford directly and characterized the primary fight as "an audition" where "no Republican should ever say anything about another Republican that a Democrat could use against him."

Reagan, who announced Thursday his decision to challenge Ford for the GOP nomination, departed for Charlotte, N.C., with a stop scheduled later in the day in Chicago and a rally tonight in Los Angeles.

If nominated he would want a vice-presidential candidate on the ticket who matched his views, Reagan said.

The Republican presidential candidate "has an obligation to recommend somebody who he believes would carry on the same principles as the president," Reagan said. "I don't think it would make sense to do the opposite."

Reagan, under tight security because of a toy-gun incident in Miami, completed his first day of campaigning Thursday night, fielding questions from an enthusiastic audience of more than 900 supporters at a nearby convention hall in Bedford. He closed the session with 30 minutes of handshaking and autograph-signing.

Reagan flew to New Hampshire from Miami, where he encountered a man wielding a plastic toy pistol as he shook hands after the first rally of his campaign. The man, identified as Michael Lance Carvin, 20, of Pompano, Fla., was grabbed by Secret Service agents and Reagan was hustled away.

Bob Newbrand, special agent in charge of the Miami area Secret Service office, said Carvin was charged with intimidating a presidential candidate and with assaulting a federal officer.

The 64-year-old Reagan looked tired and was a bit hoarse as he answered questions from the New Hampshire audience on such issues as unemployment, defense spending, détente, abortion, welfare reform, gun control, busing and foreign aid.

Reagan repeatedly cited his policy of fiscal conservatism and his fight for welfare reform as California's chief executive.

Secret Service is 'over extended'

MIAMI (AP)—The Secret Service, faced with two attacks on President Ford and one on presidential candidate Ronald Reagan within three months, is "over-extended" by the current large field of presidential candidates, says a top service official.

"It's going to get worse, and there are more candidates on the way," said Bob Newbrand, special agent in charge of the Secret Service office in Miami following the attack Thursday on Reagan by a young man wielding a toy gun.

Newbrand said that the service was augmented by agents from U.S. customs and other federal agencies, but "we're very thin right now."

"We're over-extended at this stage and we're a couple of months from the first primary," he said.

In Washington, Secret Service

spokesman Jack Warner said, "I just have to place that as one supervisor's opinion ... I would not say our manpower is over-extended. I would say in this period the Secret Service manpower will be utilized to its utmost capacity."

Warner said the agency had budgeted with the expectation of protecting 10 to 14 candidates. There now are 12 announced presidential candidates, 10 Democrats, Ford and Reagan.

Warner said the agency is now protecting six candidates in addition to Ford and Reagan. They are Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace; R. Sargent Shriver, 1972 Democratic Vice Presidential candidate; Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh; Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter; Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, and Tex. Rep. Lloyd M. Bentsen.

The young man with the toy pistol Thursday was about a yard from where Reagan was shaking hands with well wishers.

He was identified as Michael Lance Carvin, 20, of Pompano Beach, and was charged with intimidating a presidential candidate and assaulting a federal officer, Newbrand said. Maximum penalties are one year in prison and a $1,000 fine on the intimidation charge and three years in prison and $5,000 fine on the assault charge.

Carvin was to be arraigned today.

Reagan had announced his intentions to challenge President Ford for the GOP nomination in Washington just hours before the incident and Secret Service agents had been guarding him for only half a day when the incident occurred. Reagan said he would not allow the attack to hinder his campaign.

"You have to remember this is not a thing that is limited to presidential candidates," he said at a news conference.

Reagan had just finished a 15-minute outdoor speech to about 400 supporters gathered in front of a motel near Miami's airport. He stepped off the podium and moved along a security rope set up to keep the crowd about 15 yards away.

As he grabbed the third or fourth hand, agents dived atop the young man holding the fake gun. Two bystanders were knocked to the ground, and Reagan, pulled from behind by other agents, appeared to momentarily lose his footing.

"I had gone over to that side of the audience to see an old friend," Reagan said. "I just thought someone had fallen down, and I was persuaded by the Secret Service to leave."

Newbrand said Carvin, a dropout from the University of Denver and the University of Tampa, did not have a criminal record but was believed to have made a threatening call last week from a Pompano Beach pay telephone.

Newbrand said the Secret Service office in Denver received the call Nov. 10 from a man identifying himself only as Michael. The caller threatened to harm Reagan, Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller unless Lynette Fromme was freed.

Miss Fromme, charged with attempting to assassinate Ford in Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 5, is on trial in Sacramento.

Sara Jane Moore has been charged in another alleged attempt on Ford's life, this time in San Francisco Sept. 22. Miss Moore, charged with firing a shot at the President outside a hotel, is awaiting trial.

DDC workers face charges

Two employees at the Dixon Developmental Center were arrested Thursday by Dixon Police, in connection with the beating of a resident.

Vincent Perez, 20, 1400 N. Jefferson Ave., has been charged with aggravated battery. He is accused of striking Lawrence Lee Jett several times in the stomach and the head. The incident reportedly occurred Wednesday. Medical officials at the center said that Jett had been cut in the lip and required minor medical attention.

Marjorie N. Rigdon, 43, 206 Hubbell Drive, was subsequently arrested by police on a charge of obstructing justice. She is accused of trying to cover up Perez's alleged involvement in the beating.

Youth held competent for trial

Circuit Judge Thomas E. Hornsby today found Scott Kagay, 13, competent to stand trial for the murder of an Amboy man on Aug. 11.

Two court-appointed psychiatrists, J. G. Graybill, Rockford, and Wener Tuteur, Elgin, held the former Amboy resident is able to understand the charge against him and is capable of working with his defense lawyer during a trial.

A trial was scheduled for Jan. 12, 1976.

A motion for jury trial submitted to the court by Public Defender William J. Sturgeon was denied by Judge N. Hornsby. Ward opposed the jury request, citing the Juvenile Court Act and the federal Constitution which permit the conducting of a bench trial for juveniles.

Kagay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kagay, Geneseo. The family lived in Amboy at the time of the shooting of Harold Smith, shot once in the head with a .22-caliber bullet while walking in his orchard.

The boy has been held at Singer Zone Center, Rockford, since the shooting, on a voluntary commitment. Judge Hornsby approved the transfer of Kagay to a similar institution in Galesburg, closer to his parents.

the nation.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailer on Thursday announced the new policy, which also is likely to spark opposition in Congress.

Bailer had continued the Postal Service's policy of slowly reducing the number of small post offices even after a General Accounting Office report in June suggested closing 12,000 offices.

The postmaster general agreed then that the closings would save $100 million without hurting service. But he said he was reluctant to adopt such a policy because of concern by congressmen about such closings.

In announcing Thursday's change, Bailer said, "I cannot emphasize too strongly the severity of our financial situation. It calls for strong measures but ones which must be taken."

The Postal Service is losing nearly $7 million a day.

"We will close no office unless we are able to provide service equal to or superior to that formerly available," Bailer pledged.

When rural post offices are closed they usually are replaced by rural delivery.

Jobless pay to end for many thousands

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unemployment benefits, often referred to by President Ford as "our first line of defense in a recession," are running out for tens of thousands of jobless Americans.

For the most part, they are men in the prime of their working years who were employed in blue-collar jobs. But a disproportionate number are blacks and the elderly—usually the last to be rehired.

Despite the improving economy, unemployment remains at its highest level since the Great Depression of the 1930s, and most economists agree it will remain at high levels through most of the decade.

To soften the impact of the recession, Congress repeatedly extended unemployment benefits to a maximum of 65 weeks for some workers. But for the first victims of the business slump and those caught in the wave of layoffs during the 1973 Arab oil embargo that preceded it, even this economic prop has been exhausted.

Labor Department officials say 287,000 people had used up their eligibility as of last June and were forced to look elsewhere for income. The number is increasing each week, and the department estimates that in 1976 some 2,470,000 Americans will use up their benefits.

Some will find jobs. Others have alternative sources of income; some states, for example, permit retirees to draw benefits. But others will be forced to turn to welfare.

"As their unemployment compensation terminates," says Senate Labor Committee Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., "family savings and other assets are the first to go. Eventually, they can qualify for public assistance on the welfare rolls. The next recourse is bankruptcy. And then there is crime."

The amount and duration of unemployment benefits vary from state to state because of differences in benefit and eligibility regulations. Payments generally range from $65 to $100 a week, although payments run higher in a few states.

Killed by tractor

OREGON—A rural Chana man was killed this morning in a farm accident at his home.

Dead is Marvin Burkhart, 66. Burkhart was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, by Ogle County Coroner Robert Personette.

According to reports, Burkhart was working on a tractor in the driveway in his home when he fell and the right-rear tire of the tractor ran over him. A neighboring farmer, George Lawson, was helping Burkhart and came out of a shed in time to see the tractor run over Burkhart. Lawson immediately called for an ambulance.

Ogle County Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene to investigate the accident.

Ford in trouble with detente

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

President Ford's quiet observation that Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's Washington visit to him may be postponed carries much more than meets the eye.

Mr. Ford is in trouble with Brezhnev—on detente.

Behind closed doors, in the Kremlin or in their own home capitals, Brezhnev has conferred about detente with each of the six Soviet satellite leaders. All six wanted him to explain the Soviet moves toward improved relations with the United States. And Mr. Ford has been informed that Brezhnev did so.

The Red leaders involved were Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria, Ludvik Svoboda of Czechoslovakia, Erich Honecker of East Germany, Janos Kadar of Hungary, Henryk Jablonski of Poland and Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania.

Brezhnev told each that the Kremlin's move toward improved U.S. relations is only and entirely a tactical policy. He stated, separately to each, that this tactical policy was merely a time-winning device.

He emphasized that the U.S.S.R.'s interests remain hostile to the United States, detente notwithstanding, whether manifest in the Middle East, the southern rim of the Mediterranean, Southeast Asia, Cuba and Latin America or elsewhere.

Brezhnev stated to each Communist leader that the Kremlin's goal in the tactical policy is to allow the Soviet bloc to establish its superiority. He said that this requires time and pointed to the situations inside each of the six satellites as well as within the Soviet Union itself, with special reference to agriculture and housing.

In view of the satellites' own experiences, Brezhnev ignored the economic failure of Communism: that no Communist country—as true today as in the days of Lenin, 58 years ago—has ever been able to function for its people over the long haul without assistance from the free world.

There have been eight five-year economic plans; none successful.

The U.S.S.R. announced the latest results on Feb. 3, 1973, for 1971-75. Another failure—especially in agriculture.

Brezhnev told each of the six Red leaders that during the period of assistance from the United States and the West, the U.S.S.R. intends to pursue Western accords while it simultaneously builds up its own economic and military strength and that of its satellites.

He said that he had employed dilatory tactics in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) and would continue to stall in the SALT II talks.

Brezhnev pointed out that Western Europe and the whole free world lives under the protection of America's massive nuclear deterrent capability; the U.S. "atomic umbrella." But he stated that he has already maneuvered the United States over a strategic barrel. He intends, he said, to roll this barrel as hard as he can.

Brezhnev explained that SALT I allowed the Soviet numerical superiority in three vital categories: land-based missiles, Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles (IBMs), missile-carrying submarines.

Brezhnev said that America agreed to SALT I because of its advanced technology, represented importantly by the MIRV—a multiple-warhead rocket that allows one missile to attack several targets at the same time. But he stated that the Soviet has developed, and tested, equivalent missiles.

He said this breakthrough forces the United States into an inferior position by allowing the Soviet to replace its missiles with MIRV-type missiles without violating SALT I stipulations concerning launching sites.

During detente, said Brezhnev, the Soviet can establish an independent, superior and commanding position in confronting the United States. Then the Soviet can put the screws on the United States.

Brezhnev said that he sees the American life-style as soft, overindulgent and essentially decadent. The tough will win, he stated, and it is no longer the nature of the United States to be tough: a push here, a shove there, and the United States will finally fall apart. He saw an ultimate threat of terror as the clincher.

America will be up for grabs, Brezhnev calculated to each of the six Red leaders of Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Romania.

What concerns President Ford is that rumors are one thing, but learning Brezhnev's true intent, the sources being impeccable, is quite another.

Guest Editorial Campaign No. 4 for Wallace

(Reprinted from the Chicago Tribune)

Alabama's Gov. George Wallace has begun his fourth campaign for the Presidency—this time, it appears, as a Democrat with no intention of heading a third-party insurgency. In other respects this campaign is not likely to be markedly different from the other three, except for somewhat more elevated slogans (especially as regards race) and an appeal aimed at a broader audience than formerly. In spite of that, Mr. Wallace will continue to make his meanings clear for those who want to hear them.

In his announcement of candidacy Wednesday, Mr. Wallace outlined a campaign directed toward "the great mass of people that make up the middle class—the taxi driver, the waitress, the auto worker, the fireman, the building tradesman, the little businessman, and the farmer." His slogan for 1976, he said, would be "Trust in the People," and his campaign would aim at "putting some people leadership in the Democratic Party . . . and the White House."

What Mr. Wallace defines as the middle class is of course the strongest constituency any candidate could hope for, and his appeal is skillfully framed to attract it. His success will depend on how well he can convince working people that he is in fact their spokesman and champion. Mr. Wallace can't make much of a case for himself in that role; Alabama's middle class has benefitted very little from his simplistic slogans, being saddled with high state taxes, a bulging debt, and the poorest educational services of any state in the nation. He will have to wage a negative, name-calling campaign to persuade working people that nobody else cares about them—that the other candidates are big-business types, liberal elitists, pointyhead intellectuals, and the rest of it.

Yet Mr. Wallace has some things going for him: high unemployment, general suspicion of standard politics and government, and a widespread sense among working people that their interests and feelings have been ignored by leaders of both parties. The problems are real; so are the grievances. If Mr. Wallace can play on these feelings skillfully enough (and he has great talent in that direction), he will undoubtedly capture a large protest vote from people who do not know exactly what the trouble is, but do know they want something different.

In this sense, Mr. Wallace's campaign should have an indirect benefit. With him insistently calling attention to the needs and grievances of working people, they are less likely to be overlooked by worthy candidates who might, if elected, do something constructive about them.

Death with dignity

Quo vadis American medicine? I am referring to the Quinlan case where a hospital, a doctor, or group of doctors have convinced a judge to decide that the continuation of the living death of an unfortunate human being is just and moral; and they may have a point. However, there is another point: are we forgetting about death with dignity? Who are we who can override God or His substitute by prolonging a life which was intended to terminate long ago? Some of us may think that such efforts might be put to better use rather than dragging Miss Quinlan's life through its hither and thither of hope, salvation, agony and despair.

Whatever the motives, we might have a case of clear and definite conflict of interests: the same very people who have decided on this course of events are the very same ones who might gain financially from their decision.

I do not know what is happening in New Jersey, but if the same thing would occur in Illinois, should no insurance be paying the bills the state or township would. By law, a person like Miss Quinlan becomes by definition indigent and consequently entitled to our tax money. I would not begrudge giving this money to her to use if she recovers (which you and I know she will not), what I begrudge is to give it to the people who keep her legally alive.

It certainly would make most of us rest at ease if we could read an unequivocal statement to the effect that either the hospital, or the doctors, or both, are doing this for no financial retribution; and if they did and they still do, disqualify themselves in passing judgment and have a state hospital and another group of doctors (of great integrity) take over the case. I would also like to see judges who would understand that there is no difference between living death and death itself. I believe that the certainty of death is the penalty of every birth and it is not tubes and respirators which ennoble our mortality; and that the tragedy and redemption of life should not be paid in coin but met with kindness and love, and no hospital is a substitute for parental kindness and no doctor a substitute for parental love.

Sincerely,
V. L. Traina, M.D.

REFLECTIONS— Lyndon Baines Johnson and Gerald R. Ford both were elected to Congress in 1948, Johnson to the Senate and Ford to the House of Representatives.

Ford left the House in 1973 when he was picked by Richard Nixon to be vice president to succeed the deposed Spiro T. Agnew.

On Nov. 22, 1963, after the assassination of Kennedy, Johnson became the 36th President of the United States.

On Aug. 9, 1974, after Richard Nixon became the first President in history to resign the office, Ford became the nation's 38th President.

In 1964, Johnson won the Presidency in his own right with a landslide victory over Sen. Barry Goldwater. Johnson received a record of 61.09 per cent of the popular vote which still stands. Nixon's "mandate" in 1972 over Sen. George McGovern garnered him almost that much but fell nearly four-tenths of one per cent short, with 60.7 per cent of the popular vote.

Ford has yet to be tested to earn the office in his own right.

Johnson was a politician's politician and of himself once said, "I am a compromiser and a manipulator."

Three years after he entered the Senate, in 1951, LBJ became Democratic whip and in 1953 was elected Democratic leader, holding this post until 1960.

During the 1950s, when Dwight Eisenhower was President and Democrats enjoyed reasonable majorities in Congress, Johnson wielded great power.

He was an uncanny master of being able to get the Senate first and secondly the House to pass or withhold legislation he desired.

Acknowledgely President Eisenhower had to modify his action in deference to Johnson's power in Congress. Everett Dirksen, Republican leader in the Senate while Johnson was at the zenith of his power, also had to come to terms with the West Texan.

When LBJ became President, much speculation was written about his illustrious congressional career and that this was a harbinger of him establishing unprecedented relation between the White House and Congress.

The advance billing of LBJ's success as President proved to become reality for the first three years in that office. He was able to push through more innovative domestic legislation than any President in this century and his programs, known as "The Great Society," included medical care for the aged under Social Security, the first comprehensive aid-to-education law, a voting rights bill, a broad housing program, immigration reforms and a host of other programs.

The 1966 elections reduced the Democratic majorities in Congress and the legislative output of Johnson's programs was greatly reduced.

A combination of racial rioting, student disturbances and growing protest over the U.S. involvement in Vietnam plagued the last two years of his term in office.

In 1968, he announced his candidacy for another term and started campaigning.

On March 31, 1968, after losing the New Hampshire primary to Sen. Gene McCarthy, a Vietnam war critic, LBJ surprised the American people as he went on nationwide TV to announce he would not accept the nomination of his party to run for President.

Johnson retired from office after Nixon won a paper-thin popular plurality victory over Hubert Humphrey. The electoral college vote was not close.

Johnson died Jan. 22, 1973.

Ford rose to leadership in his party in the House, but did not match the amazing legislative successes of LBJ. In 1968, 20 years after being first elected to Congress, Ford became chairman of the Republican Conference of the House. In 1969 he was elected minority leader, a post he held until becoming vice president in 1973.

One great difference between Johnson's career and that of Ford's in Congress is LBJ was Democratic leader in the Senate when that party enjoyed comfortable majorities over Republicans, while Ford toiled during years when Republicans were in the minority in the House.

When Ford went to the White House and particularly when he became President in 1974, guesses abounded the members of Congress would go easy on the man who had been in their chambers for 25 years but now occupies the Oval Office.

This, many thought foreboded good for the country, since better solutions were needed to cope with inflation, recession, unemployment, the energy crisis, to name only a few of major problems facing the people of the nation.

Ford has been in office 15 months and little legislation has been passed to cope with any one of the first-running problems plaguing the people.

The Congressional-nurtured President has set a near record of executive vetoes of legislation during his tenancy in the Oval Office.

In short, things have not gone well between Congress and the man in the White House.

Much of this is not Ford's responsibility. The major problems were inherited by his administration and the legacy of Watergate, left him by the man he pardoned from prosecution for any crimes committed while he was President, caused Democratic majorities to swell to heights not seen since the early days of the Great Depression.

Almost three months to the day after he became President, voters went to the polls and after the ballots were counted, Democrats outnumbered GOPs in the House by 290 to 144 and in the Senate Democrats had 61 members to 38 Republicans.

Such a composition of Congress is not a legislative field in which a Republican President can be expected to be able to reap good yields of executive proposed programs.

This is another election year and another product of Congress who has ascended to the Presidency by appointment rather than by election is to be tested and the outcome is not certain.

'Ballotese' baffles voters

By DON OAKLEY

Voters in communities across the country were confronted with all kinds of issues on Nov. 4, as they are every Election Day. The following, taken from the ballot in one small midwestern city, was not untypical:

"Shall the charter amendment as proposed by Ordinance No. 1975-18 approved by the Blank City Council, September 3, 1975, to amend existing Sections 3.14, 4.04, 4.05, 5.01, 6.01, 7.01, 7.02, 7.03, 9.01, 9.02, 10.01, 10.02, and 10.04, enacting new Sections 2.01, 5.01, 10.01, 10.02, 11.01, 11.02, 11.03, 12.01, 12.02, and 12.03, repealing existing Sections 4.06, 8.01 and 8.02, and renumbering existing and new sections incidental thereto, to provide for the appointment and removal by majority vote of Council of a city manager, who will assume office on January 1, 1978, be adopted?"

This particular issue, which was one of nearly a dozen similarly phrased, was defeated by the voters of "Blank City." There is no way of telling how many rejected it on its merits and how many were simply dazed by all the verbiage between the "Shall" and the "be adopted" and, uncertain just what it was they were being asked to decide, followed the old unwritten adage: "When in doubt, vote no."

Now there are probably any number of good reasons of law and legal precedent why this kind of "ballotese" is necessary. One can be pardoned, however, for sometimes suspecting that the legal mind's fondness for mumbo-jumbo is not greatly different from that of the jungle witch doctor.

Lawyers never use one word where three will do. A person's will does not merely give his worldly goods to his heirs but "gives, bequeaths and devises." Like the witch doctor's magical incantation, unless the legal language is precisely so and exactly like that used from time immemorial, it isn't any good.

But would it not be possible to use common sense and strive for a little more clarity on our ballots? Something like this:

"Shall Blank City adopt a city manager form of government? The city manager would assume office on January 1, 1978 and be subject to appointment and removal by majority vote of Council."

Then below:

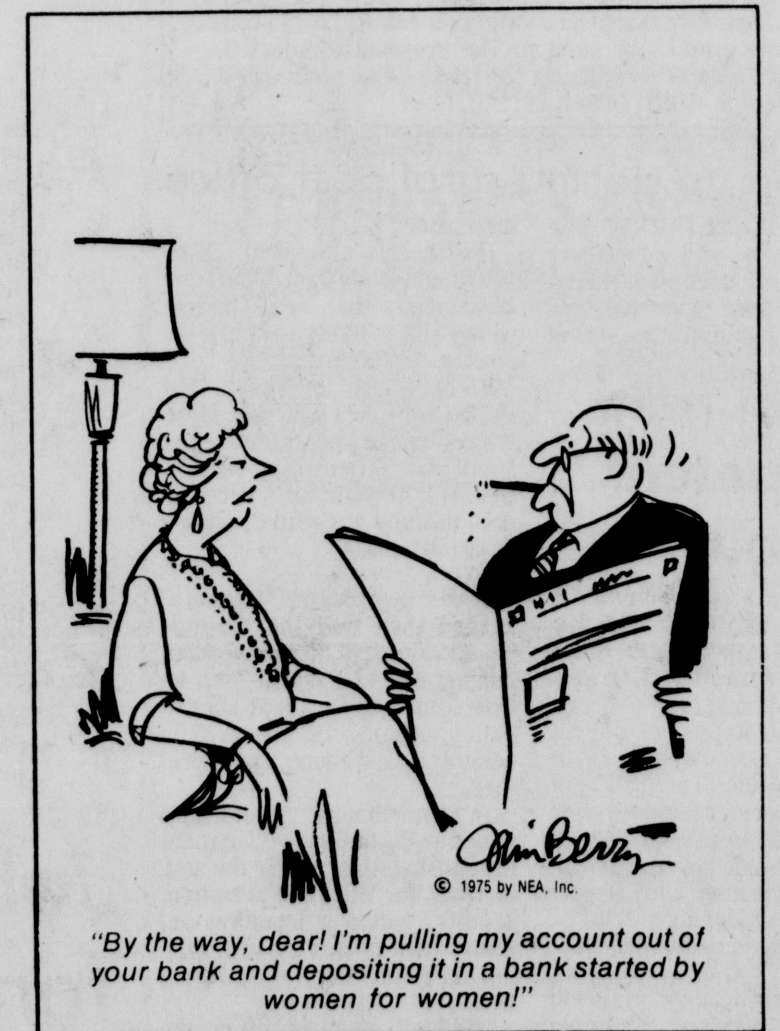

"This charter amendment, proposed by Ordinance No. 1975-18 and approved by the Blank City Council, September 3, 1975, would amend existing Sections . . . and so on.

Actually, this example is not bad at all. It is a model of simplicity compared to some involving matters like the issuance of bonds or the amendment of state constitutions. Issues have been known to be framed (could it be deliberately?) so that a negative vote is really a vote in favor, or vice versa.

Little wonder that there is such widespread distrust of government and politicians and so much voter apathy.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO
Thomas Whitcombe, an August graduate of Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, now teaching at Wyoming, was among 75 straight "A" students who attended a banquet in their honor at the university.

Motorists who receive 1966 Illinois license plates before Dec. 1 are warned it is illegal to display them on their cars until after that date. There is no indication Dixon Police plan to arrest those who violate this display date, but car owners should be aware they are subject to arrest if the plates are mounted before Dec. 1.

25 YEARS AGO
Christmas carols will fill the air in Dixon for the Yuletide season, colored lights will brighten the streets and Santa Claus will hand out candy to the kiddies. Workmen are stringing up the lights across the intersections now and the job is expected to be completed Wednesday. The lights will go on Friday.

Tuesday, Nov. 21, has been selected as the special day to honor all of the local volunteer 4-H club leaders in Illinois, says the Lee County home advisor. Highlights of today will be the fifth annual 4-H leaders recognition banquet at the Hotel Abraham Lincoln, Springfield. Four local leaders and one extension worker from each county in the state are invited to attend each year.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Why do Frank Sinatra and John Wayne have to play war heroes in the movies—neither man served time in the service.—J. W. WALTON, Mobile, Ala.

Having actual experience doing something is not, and never has been, a prerequisite for acting a part. Actors play anything. Chad Everett was never a doctor, yet plays a doctor on Medical Center. Carroll O'Connor is not a bigot, yet plays one on All In the Family. If actors were required to have been whatever it is they are playing, we'd have very few shows on the air or movies in theaters.

DEAR DICK: What are the top ten TV shows in the U.S.?—A. DEER, Monroeville, Ala.

If you mean the top ten at the moment, the latest rating figures I have list them as: All In the Family, Maude, Phyllis, Sanford and Son, The Six Million Dollar Man, The Streets of San Francisco, Rhoda, Kojak, The Waltons and Medical Center. If you mean the top ten of all time, a recent survey by the Broadcast Information Bureau, who polled 3,000 TV industry executives for their all-time favorites, shows these winners: Perry Mason, Your Show of Shows, Star Trek, Playhouse 90, The Mary Tyler Moore Show, The Defenders, The Milton Berle Show, Omnibus, Monty Python's Flying Circus and The $64,000 Question.

DEAR DICK: When the movie, "Jaws," leaves, will it be back? And will it be on TV?—A. F. and P.L., Meriden, Conn.

Most movies that have the huge success of "Jaws" do come back, after a year or so. And, because of that, they do not appear on TV until after that second run is complete. I imagine "Jaws" will follow that pattern, so I doubt it will make the home screen until 1979 or 1980.

DEAR DICK: I was wondering what ever happened to Michael Cole, Clarence Williams and Peggy Lipton of The Mod Squad. I hardly ever see them in any TV shows.—PRISCILLA FARNEY, Griffin, Ga.

Well, Peggy Lipton is out of the business. She married Quincy Jones and seems happy. She was never really gung ho about acting, anyhow. Cole is trying to work, but the competition for parts is very keen. Williams, who didn't endear himself in Hollywood, is back in New York and nothing much has been heard from him lately. I always thought that The Mod Squad property was stronger than the three leads, and didn't have much hope that Peggy, Mike and Clarence would go on to do anything special.

DEAR DICK: On Hee Haw, Johnny Cash was the guest with his son. He introduced the boy as John Cash Carter, instead of John Carter Cash, which is his real name. Are Johnny and June divorced? If not, then, why did he call his son John Cash Carter?—RUTH ANN HOLIDAY, Anaheim, Calif.

By coincidence, I was in Nashville the day that show was taped and noted Johnny's slip. June was right there, and they are still happily married. I asked Johnny why he said John Cash Carter and he said, "It was just a slip of the tongue." It still seems odd to me, but that was his explanation.

DEAR DICK: Is the girl from the movie, "Walking Tall," who plays Sheriff Pusser's wife the same girl who played in the movie, "Patch of Blue," with Sidney Poitier?—AUDREY BARROW, Mobile, Ala.

Yes, Elizabeth Hartman played both parts.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who the father is on The Brady Bunch? I think it's Bert Convy but Dad thinks otherwise. Please settle this.—SUE LANDRY, Brockville, Ont., Can.

Father knows best. It was otherwise, alias Robert Reed.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know what happened to the actor, Richard Cromwell, who was in "Hoopla" with Clara Bow. I always admired him. I would like to know where he is and what he is doing.—AN OLD TIMER, Steubenville, Ohio.

I can tell you where he is—he died in 1960—but I can't tell you what he's doing.

DEAR DICK: Why is it in every TV show that had to do with the South, the South gets cut down? They say we can't talk properly, we're uneducated and we live in shabby old shacks in the middle of the woods. After a while, the cutting down gets to you.—FRANK SHOLES, Mobile, Ala.

I think you're oversensitive. Many shows picture Southerners favorably—The Waltons, for example. I imagine Northerners could object to TV shows always focusing on crime in the streets in their cities, too.

DEAR DICK: A few years ago there was a show called "Here Come the Brides." Could you tell me the name of the mountain and what the three brothers' last name was?—MRS. JERRY MOSSOR, Mingo Junction, Ohio.

The three brothers, played by Robert Brown, David Soul and Bobby Sherman, were the Bolt brothers. But the name of the mountain is beyond recall. I asked Chris Morgan, who produced the show, and even he can't remember. Any reader recall it?

DEAR DICK: I saw Redd Foxx on Cher and he was bald. And I saw him with hair on his own show. Is he bald?—DAVID PERRY, Wellington, P.E.I., Can.

Foxx needs the help of a hair piece to give him that hairy Sanford & Son look.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if the actress who used to be in the Guiding Light as Charlotte Bauer is the same woman who plays David McCallum's wife on The Invisible Man?—NANCY GARCIA, Muleshoe, Tex.

Yes, it's the same woman. Her name is Melinda Fee.

Karras reveals football philosophy

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
MIAMI, Fla. (NEA)—Through lenses as thick as his thighs, Alex Karras takes an owl's view of life and particularly of football, the milieu in which he has spent most of his life.

Dr. Karras, getting ready for one of his Monday night lectures on the phenomenon of men willfully hitting each other, thoroughly dissected the species in a rambling dissertation. He was importuned to analyze the psyche of "homo jock-ies" by job categories.

This came about because Alex, in a nostalgic mood, remembered when a Colt linebacker named Bill Pellington used to encase his forearms in a hard plaster cast and beat on Karras's head:

"He knocked me out twice, so to make sure I stayed alive, I asked our center to complain to the referee about the cast. The center didn't because he didn't want to make Pellington mad.

"Guards," he said, "are the guys that when they were at home, could accept getting the stuffing kicked out of them by their parents. I have Georgie (his son) at home. He wants to get kicked once a month. Guards want to be loved. They are playing against killers, the defensive tackles, paid assassins. So they have this nice-nice look."

He screwed his round face up in a smile.

"Tackles," the discourse went on, "are quiet giants. With a mean streak. You can whack them around but you can't hit them in the face. They marry very little girls. Charley Bradshaw, he is 6-6 and a lawyer, and he talks like tha-a-at. His wife is 4-11. They have little kids who are never going to be more than 5-3.

"Tight ends are frustrated backs. They want to be like Jimmy Brown. They want to get into the ball game actively and be a star. But they can't run fast enough."

The phone rang to interrupt Dr. Karras's verbal tour de force. "It's probably my bookie," he said.

"Where were we? Wide receivers?" he asked rhetorically as he resumed. "They're always messed up in school. They rely on their mothers. 'What shall I do?' they ask when they have to pick out a tie. When they get married and go into proball, they get stoned on their wives. They're nerve-wracking. They chew gum and think the world is on their backs.

"Running backs usually come from well-to-do homes."

"Even the predominantly black backs?" he was questioned.

"The fathers and mothers are both working," he pranced neatly out of the question. "They're diet-conscious, which usually means you're fairly intelligent. They like to go to picnics. That's how they started competing—at the age of 6. They played games like 'two people in a bag' and 'hot water blue beans.'

"The quarterbacks, they are

ALEX KARRAS: "Coaches are paranoid and stereotyped . . . they can't teach me I have to beat up somebody."

wealthy. They got the only football in the neighborhood when they are 3. He's the guy who has the hip pads when he's 7. 'If you want to play, I've got the football,' he says. Teachers love 'em. 'Why don't you do like Billy?' teachers ask the other kids.

"The quarterback never has problems. He doesn't need a summer job when he's 14 or 15. They got a lot of girls, but they don't know what to do with them."

Dr. Karras turned his notes over and aimed his mouth at more subjective territory, the defense, in which he had once specialized.

"Defensive ends," he said sonorously, pausing to let the words sink in. "I like defensive ends. They're smarter than defensive tackles. They didn't put on a lot of weight. They're quicker in the mind and body, more flowing muscles. They get girls, too. But they're a little freaky. Even the southern guys get girls.

"Defensive tackles—the owner says to them, 'Here's your money.' But he never pays. When they get money, they crush it. They put it in their pocket, no wallet, and crumple it. They put it on a bar, they flatten it with their fists. Innocent as they are, they can kill. They're all complexes. All their life they've been hearing, 'Hey, Tubby . . . hey, Fatso.' They've been fighting since they were 3-years-old. They hate society.

"The middle linebackers are the quarterbacks. They want to command. They like to show their chests. But they got skinny legs and try to hide it by padding them. When they take off the padding in the locker room, newspapermen giggle. The middle linebackers are really macho. They dig the scene. They never have women. If they're married, they never take their wives out.

"The outside linebackers are conscientious. they're good athletes and they always get A's and B's in school. Their minds are together. They're not too heavy or too ugly. Not too many come from split homes. The outside linebacker is the most normal guy on the team. He'll hurt you in a game but go to see you later in the hospital.

"The corner backs on defense never wanted to hit anybody. 'I should really be playing basketball,' he says, but he can't dunk. I'll play the corner and hope I have a good team in front of me.

"Safeties are sissies. They want the numbers and the ladies. They're looking at the sidelines all the time, checking out the cheerleaders. They're all southern guys and passive."

Dr. Karras's recitation would not be complete without a diagnosis of his favorite species, the kickers.

"They're not athletes," he said pointedly. "They're from foreign countries. They don't know if a 265-pound athlete is coming down the field, they're going to get killed. When they find it out, we'll have American style kickers. Meanwhile they make football exotic. A lot of Bulgarian girls follow them."

The doctor, who would continue his lecture more formally this particular Monday evening on ABC television in conjunction with Professor Howard Co-sell and Laboratory Analyst Frank Gifford, admitted that his viewpoint was somewhat jaundiced because of environmental factors. First, it was influenced by his long association with football coaches. "Coaches," he said, "are paranoid and stereotyped. I had many clinical disagreements with them. They can't teach me I have to beat up somebody."

Second, he grew up on a street in Gary, Ind., where there were only ethnic minorities.

"To see blue eyes," he said, "what a trip. We loved girls with blue eyes. But we couldn't bring them home."

And the big hero of the neighborhood wasn't a football player like Tom Harmon—"he never came to our side of town." It was Milan Sekulovich.

Karras mentioned that proudly because he now practices the same profession as Sekulovich, who grew up to become Karl Malden, an actor. Karras is now an actor, too, which accounts for his svelte new figure, the result of having lost 40 pounds (from 260 down to 220). He did a serious role as George Zaharis, the husband of Babe Didriksen, in a two-hour television movie, "Babe," which was shown Oct. 23. "I couldn't punch on horses all my life," said the man who played "Mongo" in "Blazing Saddles."

He misses only one aspect of his former career as a football player. "My association with the people," he said, "I loved the crowds."

Channel 9 to cover IHSA championships

CHICAGO— For the second consecutive year, WGN Television 9 is originating and televising all five championship games of the Illinois High School Association's Football Playoff Series, held today and Saturday at Hancock Stadium on the campus of Illinois State University in Normal.

Sportscasters Jim West, Floyd Brown and Rick Talley are alternating with the play-by-play and color commentary during the 12½-hour football marathon in the two-day period.

Today, television coverage began at 12 noon with the Class 1-A playoff, followed immediately by the Class 2-A contest. The Class 3-A championship, to be played at 7:30 p.m., is the first-ever night contest in the IHSA Playoffs.

The Saturday match-ups begin again at 12 noon with the Class 4-A playoff, with the Class 5-A contest to immediately follow (approximately 2:30 p.m.).

The competing teams in each class were decided last Saturday in the Semifinal series.

Pairing in each of the five classes is based on enrollment in the 534 football-playing schools of the IHSA. Categories are: Class 1-A, school with enrollment up to 303; Class 2-A, schools with enrollment of 304 to 512; Class 3-A, schools with enrollment of 513 to 988; Class 4-A, schools with enrollment of 989 to 1956; Class 5-A, schools with enrollment of 1957 and above.

All three WGN Television 9 sportscasters bring an experienced outlook to the IHSA championships; both West and Brown did the announcing for the first football playoffs of the IHSA last year. Talley, the newest member of the Television 9 sports team, also covered the playoffs last year as a Chicago Tribune sports columnist.

The business side of the news

Despite the economy

It's good cheer for Goodwill Industries

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA)— All things considered, it should be a dismal holiday season for the handicapped.

It should be, but to hear the president of Goodwill Industries tell it, it won't be.

"People have been wonderfully responsive to us," Dean Phillips says. "They seem to realize that during a time of recession, handicapped people have special needs and problems."

"When we've had difficulty getting used clothing or small appliances for our workers to repair for resale in our Goodwill thrift stores, community appeals have been universally responded to."

Even in areas such as Detroit, he says, "where industry was cut back and we had to lay off 300 handicapped people, we managed to relocate them in other work situations."

It certainly sounds good, doesn't it? And for those receiving Goodwill's services, it is. But of the nation's three million handicapped capable of work, Goodwill Industries deals with only 25,000 at a time, or 75,000 a year.

"We have 157 Goodwill plants across the country," Phillips says, "in addition to 150 branches, where we provide rehabilitation counseling and sheltered workshop experience. But there are still thousands and thousands of people in every community who could benefit from our program. We're just now beginning to get the retarded kids out of the closets and the wheel chairs out of the bedroom."

A handicapped person, according to Phillips, is "someone who can't reach his potential. That means we work with all kinds of people including paroled prisoners, as well as the mentally retarded who constitute the largest number of our handicapped. They're followed by the mentally disturbed and those with physical disabilities."

The first step in Goodwill's program is a period of evaluation. "We run an infinite number of tests on the individual—from three weeks to three months—to see what he can do. You see, we train people for all kinds of work: assembly line, computer programming, garment repairing. Even secretarial skills and custodial work in public buildings."

Once he's trained—by volunteer nurses, speech therapists, doctors and anyone else who wants to donate his time and skill—Goodwill puts the person to work in one of their workshops, with the hope of eventually placing him in the community.

"We try to teach people to live independently and to train them for a productive job, for which they earn anywhere from 50 cents to $5 an hour, depending on their skills. We've found that once an employer takes a chance on one handicapped worker, he's usually back for more."

"I remember one girl in Colorado Springs," he continues, "who was packaging parts for a manufacturer. You should have seen her. She was deaf, blind and physically handicapped in other ways, but she was thrilled to be doing her part and she never slipped once."

But life for the handicapped is no more restricted to nine to five than it is for anyone else.

"Can the handicapped worker get to his job easily? Is there an apartment for him to live in where he won't be hampered by not being able to fit a wheel chair through the elevator doors? What about recreation and religious facilities? We're concerned with all these things, the whole quality of life."

Certainly the handicapped have special needs. But, Phillips contends, the rest of the community doesn't really have to do all that much to fill them.

"Take the building industry. It doesn't cost any more to design a building with ramps and without stairs, or to place a wall plug three feet higher than it is now. We have to educate builders and architects to that, and overcome a great deal of intia on their part."

Any community that wants a Goodwill rehabilitation center can get it, Phillips says, by contacting Goodwill Industries in Washington, D.C.

"We like to have $100,000 before we lease a building and hire someone to run it, so we ask the local community to raise about $25,000 which we match. And we hope to get at least as much from the state rehabilitation department."

"But basically," he says, "it takes a group of people who see the need for us in their community, and who are willing to take on the responsibility of getting us started."

And once they've begun, there's almost no stopping them.

BE A BLOOD DONOR

Insurance agency begins 25th year

Don Ortgiesen and Ed Ortgiesen

Open House will be held Nov. 24, 25, 26 and 28 by the A. D. Ortgiesen Agency, Inc., to mark the agency's 25 years of service to customers in Amboy and surrounding communities. Those attending the Open House will register and at 5 p.m., Nov. 28, a drawing will be held for a black-and-white portable TV.

In October 1950, A. D. "Don" Ortgiesen purchased the L. S. Griffith Insurance Agency in Amboy. The office was in one room, rented from the Federal Land Bank whose offices took up the remainder of the first floor of the Lynch building on East Avenue. Don was agent, bookkeeper, office boy—really a "one-man" agency.

As the business grew he hired Mrs. Hamilton, who drove from Dixon to Amboy each day, as his secretary. Darlene Grennan replaced Mrs. Hamilton and when she left to get married Marye Hegert took on the secretarial duties for both the Ortgiesen Agency and the Federal Land Bank. In 1957 the office was moved into a two-room office on South Mason Avenue. Miss Hegert now worked full-time for the insurance agency.

In May 1964 Don purchased the agency operated by Emmett Powers in Harmon. Emmett became a broker for the agency. In November 1967 Don purchased the "Welly" Chaon Agency in West Brooklyn from Welly's widow.

In July 1969 the Leo Dempsey Agency was purchased and the office was moved from Mason Ave. to Jones Ave. into the offices of the Dempsey Agency. Mrs. Gertrude Kessinger, who had been employed by Mr. Dempsey, stayed on and the agency now employed two full-time girls. Mrs. Kessinger retired in March 1972 and Mrs. Charles Dickinson was hired in her place.

Business continued to grow and it became necessary to add a man. On Jan. 1, 1972, Edward Ortgiesen, Don's son, joined the agency as a solicitor. On Jan. 1, 1973, the agency incorporated and Ed became a major stockholder through a purchase agreement and obtained his Illinois insurance broker's license.

The office at 6 South Jones was now very crowded. It was decided to build and on July 1st 1973 the first cement was poured for the new building which was completed and occupied Dec. 1, 1973.

The agency now has two full-time men, Ed and Don, two full-time girls, Marye Hegert and Mary Dickinson, and one part-time girl, Louise Edwards. There are also three real-estate salesmen, Mrs. Hetta Grasser, Mrs. Vera Mason and Louis Grasser.

Donaldson sales earnings down

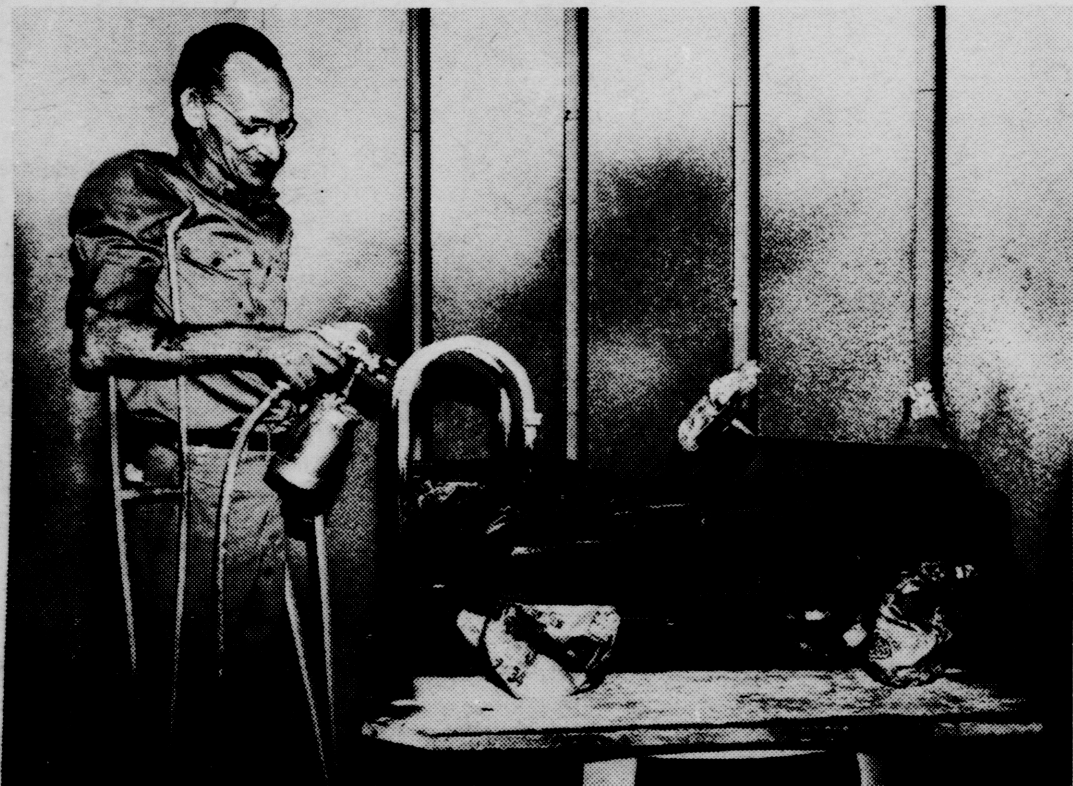

MINNEAPOLIS — Donaldson Company, Inc., today reported earnings of $1,662,000 before extraordinary item, equal to 74 cents per share, for its first quarter ended October 31, down six per cent from $1,764,000 or 79 cents per share a year ago. First quarter sales of $27,648,000 were down 13 per cent from $31,803,000.

An extraordinary item of $255,000, equal to 11 cents per share, increased net income to $1,917,000, or 85 cents per share, and came as a result of an accounting change required by a recent Internal Revenue Service ruling to go to full absorption accounting as related to inventory costing.

Wallace L. Johnson, senior vice president and treasurer, told shareholders at the company's annual meeting that first quarter operating results were somewhat better than had been projected. Backlog as of November 1 was 17 per cent below that of a year ago but improved over the previous month.

The second quarter, however, may fall slightly short of projections, Johnson said, and the first half year probably will be below the same period for the prior year. Fiscal 1976 is expected to be no more than a flat year compared with 1975.

REPAIRING OF TOYS is only one segment of productive work the handicapped learn via Goodwill Industries.

Mortality rate up for new TV shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In November 1974, 12 television series, 11 of them new had been axed by the networks. So far this season, 10 series, all of them new, have been cut by NBC and CBS. More cuts are afoot.

ABC says perhaps four of its series won't be back at midseason. It's not saying which yet, but "Barbary Coast," "Matt Helm," "Mobile One" and "S.W.A.T." all appear the leading low-rated candidates.

All but "S.W.A.T." are first-season entries.

If they get the chop, it'll mean that 13 out of 26 new weekly shows got pink-slipped before the year's end, compared to 11 out of 24 new shows in the first half of the 1974-75 season.

The mortality rate for new shows may only be slightly higher this season, but the interesting thing is that NBC is doing the heaviest program-whacking now instead of ABC, traditionally third in the ratings.

Last season, one of ABC's worst, the network raised a few eyebrows with quick, fifth-week cancellations of two new series, then followed that up by excising four more new series from its schedule.

NBC had the advantage of good ratings and took its time. In mid-November 1974, it said it was axing only three series, two of them new.

This season, with ABC enjoying suprisingly good ratings and pressing NBC for the network's traditional No. 2 slot in the weekly Nielsens, the positions seem reversed.

In only the third week of the current season, NBC canceled the new, low-rated "Fay" and "The Montefuscos" series.

Gloria Swanson, at 76, retains healthy glow

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I've been in the public eye for so long I guess I'm a curiosity," said Gloria Swanson. "People wonder how I still look good after all these years."

That 76-year-old face does look good — smooth and fresh as a schoolgirl's, framed by side-parted brown hair. Solid white teeth flash through crimson lips. There's that distinctive mole, those delicately diabolical eyebrows arched over clear blue eyes and spiked, fluttering fake eyelashes.

"It's hereditary, all in the genes," Miss Swanson demurs, dashing the hopes of beauties who will be septuagenarians one day. "But no one can have skin like a baby's bottom if they're going to stuff that hole in their face with chocolate and banana splits."

The legendary movie queen is a passionate advocate of pure food and good diet and a zealous foe of sugar. She says the countless evils of demon sugar have been exposed by her friend, William Dufty, in his book, "Sugar Blues" which Miss Swanson is helping to promote.

Dufty, a very thin, ascetic-looking man of 59, resembled a big bellied buddha until she alerted him to the dangers of sugar about 20 years ago during a brief encounter, Miss Swanson said.

He sat quietly nearby while Miss Swanson, wrapped in a white and black-embroidered caftan, snuggled into a large stuffed chair in her Fifth Avenue apartment and held forth, almost nonstop, on her favorite topic.

"If you have knowledge, you must share it with other people," she said. "My concern for good health has been a life belt for me. I feel a debt to the public and will spend my life trying to help them."

Don't eat unless hungry, she advised. Don't eat when tired or cross because food doesn't digest well at those times. Don't eat what is not clean.

The conversation is gently edged away from diet to Miss Swanson's life these days. Her most famous role was in "Sunset Boulevard," made in 1949, and her last major stage role involved 666 performances of "Butterflies Are Free" on Broadway several years ago. She said she was juggling a number of projects that she didn't want to talk about. It is known she is preparing for a one-woman retrospective, "Gloria Swanson from Silent to Sound."

She likes to travel around visiting her two daughters and her grandchildren. Around her neck she wore a hand-made gold and silver necklace representing a family tree.

"I like being called a grandmother. That's the normal, natural thing. Biologically, woman is meant to have children and care for them," said Miss Swanson, who clearly espouses the traditional male-female roles. "I want to feel that a man is stronger than me and knows more. I do think men and women are different. A woman should not live a man's life."

"I don't like females. I like women. I like women with men's minds. I have no time for trivial gossip."

'Woman' series in fourth year

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago, Sandra Elkin, a newcomer to Buffalo, N.Y., approached the management of public TV station WNED there with an idea for a weekly half-hour talk show for and about women.

This year, her idea, now bearing the series title of "Woman," began its fourth season on WNED and its third year on the national public TV hookup of the Public Broadcasting Service — PBS.

The series, which discusses topics ranging from rape to shared child custody, has had as guests some fairly big names in the feminist movement, among them writers Gloria Steinem and Susan Brownmiller.

It also has lesser-known guests, such as two women inmates of a prison in Missouri. And even a male midwife has appeared on the show.

All but two women-in-prison shows were taped in Buffalo.

And one of Mrs. Elkin's biggest desires is to get enough money to take the show to other parts of America, showing the changing times for women as well as discussing them.

But the fact the series she produces and moderates even is on the air is a tribute both to her determination and WNED's willingness to give a chance to an idea of someone who'd never even worked in TV before.

Mrs. Elkin, who moved to the Buffalo area in 1969 from Vermont with her two sons and her husband, only had worked backstage in summer theater productions before she proposed her "Woman" series to WNED.

What triggered the idea, she said, was a series of discussions with other women in her area about the lack of information of matters of great interest to women, particularly health issues.

"I just wanted something straightforward," she said.

Networks shun family viewing

NEW YORK (AP) — Some television industry observers have been quietly predicting that the new "family viewing" period will result in a wholesale slaughter of new series tailored to meet "family viewing" requirements.

The reasoning is that few will watch these toned-down shows.

Well, it hasn't been wholesale slaughter, but the survival rate isn't good. Of 16 new "family hour" series that premiered this year, six already have been pinkslipped because of low ratings.

Eight new series in all — four on CBS, four on NBC — have gotten the ax. But only two — CBS' "Kate McShane" and "Beacon Hill" — were on the air after the "family viewing" period of little sex or violence ended at 9 p.m. EST.

The latest "family hour" show to be cut is CBS' "Three for the Road," a Sunday series which will be replaced on Dec. 7 by "60 Minutes," the news-magazine program which now is in its eighth year.

The news show did reasonably well in the ratings when it got a prime-time summer tryout this year on Sunday nights against entertainment programs on NBC and ABC.

It now will face NBC's Disney series and ABC's "Swiss Family Robinson." Whether it'll beat them in the ratings and thus boost CBS' weekly ratings averages should prove very interesting.

CBS, which already has canned "Kate McShane," last week announced the demise of "Beacon Hill" in uncommonly mournful words, calling it a "bold programming experiment" that unfortunately flopped.

Robert D. Wood, the network's president, said CBS had put a lot of effort, including heavy advance promotion, into trying to make "Beacon Hill" a success. Which it was, at least in its first week.

It was the nation's top-rated show when it premiered on Monday, Aug. 25, as a two-hour special facing light summer competition.

But it quickly plunged to the lower regions of the Nielsen charts.

Shooting Stars: Life at the movies

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — David Scherman, who puts together the beautiful new book, "Life Goes To the Movies," says that movies are probably the most important aspect of American popular culture.

"The motion picture," Scherman says, "gave us our ideas of right and wrong, good and bad. Movies shaped America, whether we like it or not."

That's why the book was put together, culled from Life's 1,864 issues, from 1936 to 1972. Scherman had edited "The Best of Life," and, after that, he suggested this second volume because, he says, people are more nostalgic about old movies than anything else.

"And don't write off the movie business," he says. "I have a feeling movies are cyclical and we'll have a rebirth of Hollywood's golden era."

"Movies are coming back. And there are indications, I think, that the star system is coming back, too. It will never be the same as it was, of course. The studios will never again be able to tell the stars who to sleep with."

Many of the photographs in the book were taken by Alfred Eisenstaedt, one of Life's original photographers. Eisy first came to Hollywood on assignment during Life's first year, 1936.

"You could get seven dozen oranges for 15 cents then," he says. "I photographed Cecil B. DeMille on that first trip."

Since then, he's photographed most of them — even up to the present. He just shot Cloris Leachman for a TV Guide cover. His memories of the stars are vivid, sometimes very biting.

"Lamarr gave me a hard time," he says, "and Streisand didn't even say hello when I met her. The ones I liked best: Lombard, Loretta Young, Madeleine Carroll."

Just back from Africa is Daniel Ben-Av, with the inside story on the latest Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton wedding. Ben-Av and his associate, Steve Peyton, are promoters, and put together a celebrity tennis tournament in South Africa.

Among the stars who attended were Dyan Cannon, Ringo Starr, Mickey Dolenz, Davy Jones, Peter Lawford, Dean Martin Jr., John Marley, and The Three Degrees, a vocal group.

Just before the tournament, Ben-Av was in London where someone approached him.

"Would you like to have the Burtons?" he was asked.

The story was that Liz and Richard wanted a place to get married. They had gone to Israel, found it too crowded for their purposes. They thought maybe in South Africa they would find some seclusion for their wedding. So Ben-Av, naturally, agreed.

Liz and Dick showed up in Johannesburg and were the hit of the show. (Liz even gave Richard Barrett, the black manager of The Three Degrees, a public embrace, which shocked South Africa).

Ben-Av and Leyton took their celebrities to the Chobe game preserve, and Liz and Dick decided that was the place to be married. Nobody was there. There were only four people at the wedding, including the bride and groom.

Miss Dinges becomes wife of Leo McCoy

SUBLETTE—Miss Jane Marie Dinges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Dinges, Sublette, recently became the bride of Leo Joseph McCoy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCoy, Amboy. The Rev. Philip Bajo performed the double-ring ceremony in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church.

Mrs. E. P. O'Rourke, Amboy, accompanied the vocalist, Lewis Jones, Dixon, on the organ.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a traditional gown of white tulle and Chantilly lace over taffeta, accented with Venice lace appliques. Ruffled Chantilly lace formed the neckline and outlined the fitted sleeves and the pearl embellished yoke. The princess-style gown featured a Chantilly lace flounce and chapel train. A lace cap secured her veil of illusion. She carried a crescent cascade which featured a Sonata Cattleya orchid and white pompons, and a white lace handkerchief which her mother carried on her wedding day. It was a gift from the bride's grandmother.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Colleen Myers, Amboy. Bridesmaids were Mrs. LuAnn Bennett, Dixon, and Miss Judy Gascoigne, Amboy. Miss Jennifer Lynn Dinges, Sublette, sister of the bride was flower girl.

Each of the attendants was attired in a floor-length gown of patchwork design which featured long bishop sleeves, a deep ruffled bib and full flounce. Each dress was differentiated by a selected color on the five-inch cuffs and ruffled bib. They wore "duster" hats that matched their gowns and carried cascades of large chrysanthemums with small pompons falling from the center. These were in their selected colors of green, orange and gold.

The flower girl's dress was identical in design, with white cuffs and bib. She carried a colonial bouquet of pompons in assorted colors.

Best man was Donald McCoy, Dixon, brother of the bridegroom. Attending as groomsmen were Bill McCoy, Dixon, and Dean McCoy, Amboy, both brothers of the bridegroom. Ushers were Gary Dinges, Sublette, brother of the bride, and Hugh McCoy, Amboy, brother of the groom. Andy McCoy, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer.

A buffet reception was held at the Green River Saddle Club, Amboy, for 400 guests immediately following the ceremony. A four-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Pat Harmon and Mrs. Dean Considine. Mrs. Floyd Wilson served punch, while Mrs. Ron Leffelman presided at the coffee service. Guests were registered by Miss Kristi Hayenga and Miss Cathy Myers presided at the gift table.

A rehearsal dinner was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Amboy, the eve of the wedding.

The new Mrs. McCoy is a graduate of Amboy High School and is employed as a receptionist by Wayne F. Spener, M.D., Amboy. Mr. McCoy is a graduate of Amboy High School and is presently employed by Caterpillar

It's not always parents' fault when kids go wrong

Dear Ann Landers: Tell us again about the joys of family. We aren't convinced.

Our only child, a son, 23, has caused us more heartache than we can bear. This boy was every parent's dream until he reached 14 and started on drugs. After numerous arrests he was sent to a reform school, released on parole, and arrested shortly after for breaking and entering.

We have done everything we can think of to help straighten him out, but nothing works. People always think it's the parents' fault, but is it? We did our best — paid out a small fortune for professional help, but no one could reach him.

We've spent hundreds of sleepless nights worrying about our son, afraid the phone would ring again — someone asking us to come and get him (passed out from an overdose) or telling of a car accident with him dead or others killed by his recklessness.

If you'd like to see a grown man cry, look me up any day. — His Dad

Dear Dad: When children go wrong, it's not always the parents' fault. We now know that the genetic factor can have a dominating influence in behavioral patterns. Some children inherit fragile nervous systems. They go haywire and crack up — don't respond to parental love or professional help.

So stop feeling guilty. You've done your best. Angels can do no more.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell the reader who signed himself "speechless" not to fret over those cheapies who came to his restaurant and brought cartons of Chinese food purchased at a carry-out place down the street. There's a way to put an end to such behavior.

I had a few "Customers" who pulled the same stunt — only these fools brought their lunch in paper bags and sat in a booth for a full hour, drinking our water, using our salt, pepper, sugar, mustard, catsup, toothpicks and paper napkins. (They always left a mess and said "thank you" when they left.) After a week of it, I handed them a check just as they were preparing to leave. I charged them $1 per person for the use of the booth and the items on the table.

They were shocked, refused to pay it and walked out in a huff. Needless to say I never saw them again. — Good Riddance

Dear Friend: Your signature is my comment. Good thinking!

Dear Ann Landers: A girl who started to work here a few months ago came up to me and said, "I'm told you have a beautiful voice and sing at weddings. Will you sing at mine?" I said I'd be glad to.

The wedding was beautiful. Her father must have spent a great deal of money on it. I sang three numbers and my sister accompanied me at the piano. The bride and groom and their parents were very complimentary about my singing.

A week ago the new Mrs. returned from her honeymoon. Again she thanked me for singing — but made no mention of money. Usually I get $40 or $50. Should I send her a bill? — Been Had Dear Had: Sorry, it's too late. The time to have talked about money was when she asked you to sing.

Some brides present the musician with a gift if no fee is set and the music is provided as a favor — but you can't ask for THAT either.

Get creative with a separates wardrobe

FOR SHEER VERSATILITY there's no way to beat separates. At left is a matching ombre top and dirndl skirt. Then, for evening, you can keep wearing the skirt and change the top for a boucle-knit turtleneck, adding an obi

East's return tricks South

By Oswald & James Jacoby
The Unlucky Expert had corralled us again. He remarked, "My hand was too good. If I hadn't held the jack of spades I would have made my contract. Instead, I went down two."

"Of course East made a terrific defensive play against me, but my opponents always play that way. He took his ace of clubs and promptly placed the king of spades on the table. Now look what happened to me."

We were able to guess. Our unlucky friend assumed that East held both the king and queen of spades as part of his opening bid. Thus his jack of spades was surely going to be a winner. Therefore, he took dummy's ace of spades and instead of discarding a spade on a diamond promptly led a trump.

East went right up with his ace and led a low spade. It didn't matter what South did next. West collected tricks with his queen and 10 and followed up with the extra blow. He led his last spade.

East ruffed with the jack. South had to overruff and eventually West scored a trick with his 10 of hearts.

COMPTON— For the third time within a year, voters defeated an educational tax referendum increase in the Mendota School District which affects Compton and West Brooklynn children.
As in the June referendum, the fourth precinct, for Compton voters, was the only group approving the increase. The vote tally in Compton showed 167 for the tax increase and 58 against. The West Brooklynn precinct voted against the referendum, 106-44. The heavy voter turnout in the Mendota District saw the defeat of the tax increase proposal on a 1,784 to 1,484 basis. The defeat of the referendum will maintain the present 92-cent per $100 assessed valuation in the school education tax rate, which is one of the lowest in comparison to other school districts.

The defeat will mean approximately $275,000 in cutbacks for the 1976-77 school year. As a result of the vote, Compton School and the Blackstone School in Mendota, will be closed for the 1976-77 school year. Students enrolled at these schools will be bused to classes at schools in Mendota, where the average classroom size will be 35 students. The defeated referendum will also mean a severe cutback in school programs.

Admits his story was a hoax

OREGON— Ralph Brower, 42, Rockford, was arrested Thursday by Ogle County Sheriff's deputies on multiple charges after a story of his being robbed was proved false.

Brower was charged with illegal transportation of liquor, improper use of registration and making a false report to police.

Deputies responded to a motorist assist call north of Oregon where they spotted Brower in a parked car. After being asked for identification, Brower reportedly told deputies he had been robbed by a man and woman. After further discussion about the incident, Brower admitted to deputies the story was false. He was taken to the Public Safety Building and released on bond.

Scott endorsement of Thompson missing

CHICAGO (AP) — GOP gubernatorial hopeful James R. Thompson has many important Republican endorsements, but that of Atty. Gen. William J. Scott is missing.

Scott praised Thompson Thursday night but stopped short of an endorsement at a fundraising dinner attended by 2,000 persons.

"I have a high personal regard for Thompson, but I'm for an open primary," Scott told newsmen when asked if he planned to support Thompson's primary opponent, Richard H. Cooper.

The attorney general startled many GOP observers when he extolled the virtues of Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, a Democrat who may seek the governorship, on Nov. 11.

Scott said then that Howlett would "serve well in any office" and added later his statement could be considered "an endorsement."

At the fundraising dinner, U.S. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., called Thompson "one of the greatest candidates for public office in Illinois history."

Reagan candidacy stirs interest in Tampico, Eureka

TAMPICO, Ill. (AP) — Residents of this northwestern Illinois community, the birthplace of Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, have reacted favorably to his candidacy announcement.

The 64-year-old Reagan reportedly was born in the building that now houses the village administration offices.

His family resided in Tampico until he was 9 or 10, then moved to Dixon, townspeople said.

Some of Tampico's 800 residents still are upset because Reagan stood them up last summer at the village's centennial celebration. The former California governor declined an invitation because he said he had too many other commitments.

A number of residents later backed his decision, though, and said his appearance could have brought hordes of spectators who might have disrupted the celebration.

One of Reagan's early school classmates and now a Tampico plumber, Vernon Denison, recalls when he and Reagan attended elementary school together.

"He was a regular guy," Denison said. "He was active in everything...I know I'll vote for him. Some people think he's too conservative but maybe that's what we need right now. I think he will get votes from persons younger than me who remember his movie career."

Tampico Mayor Howard Batton thinks he'll vote for Reagan and that village council members may do the same. "Reagan is a good man and will probably get our support," he said.

His wife agrees: "My father and grandfather were Republicans and I'll stick with the party."

Local barber Earl Krantz, a man who reportedly in the know—and the village photographer—also is enthusiastic about Reagan's candidacy.

"He is the only politician who is against gun control. He is going to get my vote and the vote of most other sportsmen in this area," Krantz said.

RONALD REAGAN

EUREKA, Ill. (AP) — Nestled for more than a century on the Illinois plain, tiny Eureka College has gotten a boost toward widespread national recognition with the presidential candidacy of alumnus Ronald Reagan.

Reagan graduated from Eureka in 1932, and some students are hopeful their school's name will be hitched to his rising star.

"I'm very excited about it, I hope he'll visit us, and I'm sure he will," said Myrla Marshall, a junior. "When you go home no one has ever heard of Eureka College. Now everyone will hear of it."

About 450 students attend school on the picturesque, 112-acre campus, and some of them were convinced a Reagan candidacy would be as good for the country as for the college.

"I like the man, he was one of our most famous alumni, if not the most famous," said Greg Anderson, 21, a senior.

"He seems to have been a good governor, and he's never been linked to any scandal, and the American people are really ready for that kind of a change."

"I'm very happy he declared, not just because he went to school here but because I think he'd be a really good president," said Judy Matter, 19, a sophomore. "I like his conservative views."

When in college, Reagan joined the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity here, and today his name is publicized by the house in recruiting new members and seeking donations from other alumni, said Mike Krumwiede, a junior.

"I'm rather impressed myself (about his candidacy) in that I am a member of the same fraternity he is and attending the same school he did," said Krumwiede.

But there is some feeling here that the outpouring of sentiment for the former California governor will not be translated into active political backing. Says Ken Linhart, 22, a senior: "There aren't too many students who are politically active around here."

Founded in 1855, Eureka College also boasts another alumnus who was a governor, William Poynter, who served in Nebraska at the turn of the century. But it is clearly the Reagan name that now dominates the campus. Five years ago a new physical education center was dedicated and named after Reagan and his brother.

But there is another side to the coin.

"We've had a problem of being overidentified with Reagan in the past," said Harold Adams, a school spokesman. "It isn't Eureka College, it's Reagan's school. Before he gets to this point you have to fight it, to keep your own identity."

"But there's no point in fighting it anymore."

Elections Board frustrates lawmakers

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — One way to solve the current legal dilemma over how to pick members of the state Board of Elections would be to abolish the board entirely.

Rep. Clarence Darrow, D-Rock Island, made such a suggestion at a recent House Elections Committee meeting and the members broke into a spontaneous cheer.

The incident points up the frustration felt by lawmakers, most of whom believe something must be done about the two-year-old board, but aren't sure just what.

Established two years ago to administer the state's election laws, the four-member board was dealt a staggering legal blow in September when Judge J. Waldo Ackerman of Circuit Court ruled that the method of selecting members was unconstitutional. That ruling was appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

And in recent months a steady stream of reports of waste, no-bid contracts to politically-connected consultants and payrolls padded with friends and relatives of influential politicians have emerged concerning the board.

While Darrow said later his suggestion was only about half serious, he did acknowledge that he has had drafted a proposed constitutional amendment which would do away with the Board of Elections.

Since the board was a requirement of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a resolution passed by three-fifths of the General Assembly and approved by the voters at a referendum would be required to eliminate it.

"The resolution is in my attaché case," Darrow said. "But now I'm thinking let's really see if we can get some legislation passed."

The key to the controversy, and the basis for Judge Ackerman's ruling, is the question of who should select the members. The Senate passed this week and sent to the House legislation to create a five-member board selected totally by the General Assembly. Other proposals in the House and Senate would have members picked by the governor with legislative confirmation.

Illinois Focus

Ackerman struck down the current method in which the governor selects a member from each pair of nominees made by the four legislative leaders.

He also expressed displeasure with the tie-breaking procedure which the current board of two Democrats and two Republicans has used when it finds itself in a deadlock. This method involves drawing lots to see which member loses his vote on the question.

The constitution says only that no political party may have a majority of members on the board. One frequently proposed answer is to have an independent fifth member. The problem is how to define an independent.

Meanwhile, as the legislative gears grind slowly, the March primary election and the period for filing statements of candidacy for state offices draw closer.

Ackerman said initially that the board should be allowed to perform only bookkeeping functions but he later stayed that order, noting that "government must continue." The stay order was issued on the condition that the question of membership selection be quickly sent to the Illinois Supreme Court and early action requested.

Restructuring the Board of Elections is of prime interest to politicians, and it is between them, including Gov. Daniel Walker, that a compromise eventually will have to be worked out.

Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, the sponsor of the measure passed this week, said he is not optimistic that the House will act during the current fall session.

But the taxpayers also have a stake in an efficient, functional board of elections.

Sen. Prescott Bloom, R-Peoria, noted during debate that prior to the creation of the board elections were handled by the secretary of state office at an annual cost of $60,000.

The budget for the Board of Elections has swelled from $296,000 in fiscal 1974 to more than $3.5 million for the current fiscal year.

Some of that money, however, was needed to administer the state's campaign disclosure law which took effect last year.

American Art Pioneer

Until the mid-19th Century, American art was closely related to European styles. But during the 1800's, a number of American artists began to produce works that reflected the nation's growing discovery of its own natural beauty. Among the foremost pioneers in the artistic school of naturalism was Boston-born Winslow Homer. This Homer painting, "Salt Kettle: Bermuda," plus 16 other watercolors, are on exhibit this fall at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Homer's early works depicted scenes of American country life. After 1880, he turned to more dramatic portrayals of life along the New England coast.

Walker vows to take State Fair controversy to court

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker, stripped of his control over the Illinois State Fair by the legislature, says he'll fight the action in court.

The Illinois Senate voted Thursday to override Walker's veto of a bill giving control of the fair to an independent board, duplicating action taken earlier in the House.

Now in effect without Walker's signature is a law requiring the fair to be run by a 15-member board composed primarily of persons elected by agricultural groups from 12 districts throughout the state.

The governor issued a statement shortly after the vote saying he would ask the attorney general to test the constitutionality of the new law in a court suit.

"The new board violates the principles of good, sound government. It creates a board responsible to no one, accountable to no one," Walker said.

Both the House and the Senate were expected to hold lengthy sessions today in a last attempt to complete action on all vetoes by the midnight deadline.

Walker's controversial school aid vetoes, overridden two weeks ago in the House, remained pending in the Senate.

An attempt to override the governor's $81 million cut in direct grants to local school districts fell short of the required majority on Tuesday.

An override effort on Walker's $35.7 million reduction in grants for several special education programs was made Thursday, but it, too, fell short of the 30 votes needed in the 59-member Senate to restore appropriations reduced by the governor.

Several other override attempts also failed on Thursday. However, second efforts were still possible on vetoed bills to:

—Create a separate board of trustees for the Edwardsville campus of Southern Illinois University, which is now under the same board which also administers the Carbondale campus.

—Permit playing cards for money in the home or on the premises of veterans' or fraternal organizations as long as no one was paid for providing the facility.

—Require specific areas in some public facilities where smoking would be prohibited.

—Establish a disciplinary board run by the Illinois State Medical Society to supervise the performance of doctors.

Also pending were several compromise school aid measures designed to provide some additional money for local districts and bills to change the method of selecting members of the state Board of Elections and delegates to national political conventions.

Afternoon Homemakers Extension hosted by Mrs. Slaybaugh

AMBOY— "I have to live with myself, and so I want to be fit for myself to know." These opening lines from the poem "Myself," by Edgar A. Guest, seem a fitting prelude for the lesson topic "Understanding Yourself" presented by Mrs. Warren Mynard and Mrs. George Meusel at the Tuesday meeting of the Amboy Afternoon Unit of the Homemakers Extension, held with Mrs. Harry Slaybaugh.

They stated that the source of help for one to become the person one would like to be was within each individual. They gave hints on carrying out a personality appraisal and listed "Secrets of Charm," by John Robert Powers and Mary Sue Miller, and "The Pursuit of Happiness," by R. M. MacIver as good sources of information on the subject.

Mrs. Catherine Harrison presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, and a contribution of $25 was voted toward purchase of songbooks to be used at Mapleside Manor and at AARP meetings.

Mrs. Ted Knoll and Mrs. J. F. Selover reported that they had arranged a bulletin board featuring recipes and household hints and placed it at the laundromat for public viewing.

Mrs. William Kant reported on the Young Seekers 4-H Club selling stationery as a project.

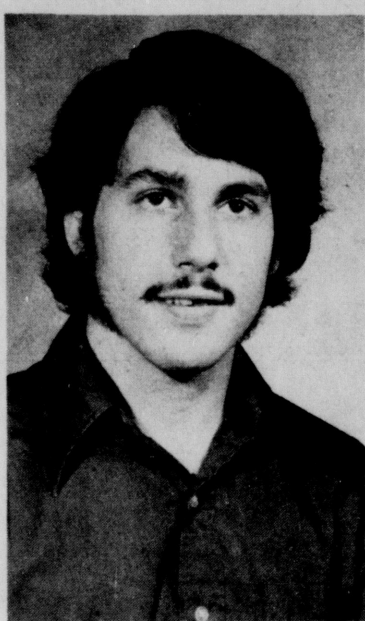

Five new members were welcomed into the unit. They were: Mrs. Sadie Englebrecht, Mrs. James Lane, Mrs. Richard Arnold, Mrs. Dwight Hintz, and Mrs. Gail Travis, and also Mrs. Ruby Friel and Mrs. Carole Martin who had joined the unit earlier in the year. Each was presented with a homemakers emblem pin and a potted plant.

Mrs. Laura Hecker, Mrs. Carole Martin and Mrs. Hazel Santelman assisted the hostess in serving a dessert luncheon.

Announcement was made of a craft meeting at 1 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Harrison, when she will give directions for making a rug-yarn flower-pot holder.

The next meeting will be held at 6 p.m. Dec. 16 in the Farm Bureau building with a supper for members and their families. There will be a dollar gift exchange and a program.

Unique concept for Bible messages

A new concept in Christian communication is being used by the Rev. John Nevius of Community Alliance Church, located at the Dixon-Sterling Freeway.

This new concept uses visuals to illustrate messages from the Bible much the same way as a news commentator would illustrate news on television. A series of eight 16mm color visuals has been scheduled by the church to begin Sunday and extend for seven weeks.

These films give the viewers a unique opportunity to "see" the geographical, historical and cultural settings of Biblical places spoken of in the Book of The Revelation. The Bible comes alive for viewers in these films and in the messages and discussion following.

Churches to be covered in this series on The Revelation include: Patmos, provides a powerful visual introduction to The Revelation, where the viewers feel the banishment and suffering of John. Ephesus, comes alive when Paul's conflict with Diana worshipers is re-created in the theater where it happened. Smyrna's theme is faithfulness. Illustrated by the historic and moving martyrdom of Polycarp, early bishop, the film asks, "What is faithfulness today? Pergamum, emphasizes overcoming difficult circumstances and victory in the risen Christ. Thyatira, is a provocative film, discussing the life and walk of Christians in the world. Sardis, illustrates the New Testament theme of watchfulness, which is vitalized in a fascinating historic incident. Philadelphia, shows the molding of life depicted through the molding and shaping of clay vessels. Laodicea, depicts the actual pipes where the hot and cold water flowed, causing John to say, "You are neither hot nor cold, I will spew thee out of my mouth."

These visuals have been developed by Dr. Win Arn, noted religious film producer and religious communicator.

The Rev. Mr. Nevius extends an invitation to individuals in the community to share in this unusual and provocative series of studies in the Book of The Revelation.

Paper Drive is planned

WALNUT— Walnut Explorer Post 53 will hold its first paper drive of the year on Saturday.

Because it has been almost a year since the last drive, collection will be made only on the south half of Walnut (south of the tracks). Papers and magazines should be tied or boxed and at the curb by 9 a.m. There will be no country routes.

The group will be loading and accepting paper in the Cheese Factory parking lot, starting at 9 a.m.

For help or extra assistance, call John Bolz at 379-2654 before Saturday so arrangements can be made.

Bicentennial Committee to raise funds

SUBLETTE — The Sublette Bi-Centennial committee met Monday evening in the Sublette Fire House.

Discussion focused on fund raising activities for the Sublette Bi-Centennial celebration. Plans are under way for a consignment auction to be held Jan. 14, with 10 per cent of the receipts to go towards the Bi-Centennial. The public will be invited to bring whatever they wish to be sold. More information will be published later.

A brief discussion was also held about the many activities for the Sublette Bi-Centennial celebration to be held, June 18, 19 and 20, 1976. Progress reports were heard on the parade, ball games, square dancing, a barbecue and numerous other activities.

The publicity committee of the Sublette Bi-Centennial Commission is looking for pictures and articles of historical interest to Sublette and the surrounding area. Anyone having materials of interest, please contact Don Dinges, Mr. and Mrs. John Faivre, Dolly Fauble, Mary Kuebel or Sue Henkel.

Sarah-Ruth Circle meets

STEWART — The Sarah-Ruth Circle of the United Methodist Church of Stewart met recently at the home of Mrs. Philip Hayes.

The meeting was opened with a devotion on Thanksgiving given by the chairman, Mrs. Michael Hayes. Roll call was answered with the word "Thanks." The Bible study on Colossians was led by Mrs. Philip Hayes.

Officers for 1976 re-elected were Mrs. Michael Hayes, chairman; Mrs. R. K. Strawbridge, vice chairman; Mrs. Lawrence Larsen, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Vivian Ross, card chairman. It was voted on to send a Christmas gift to Luisa Vicente, of Makati Commercial Center, Philippine Islands, the child the circle supports through Word Vision.

The next meeting will be December 9, 7:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Ronald Macklin. Please note change in this date. New members are welcome to attend.

BRIGHTEN YOUR LIFE WITH THE GOLDEN RULE

Do unto others, the Bible has said.
As you'd have others do unto you:
And if you will follow this passage you've read.
You will find it is certainly true
That in business, your home life or simply with friends.
It is easier getting along
If you'll never be forced into making amends.
Just because you have done someone wrong.
So to learn more about this unfailing advice
That will frequently serve as a warning.
You should go to your Church, where it's only the price
Of an hour on next Sunday morning.

— Gloria Nowak

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."
— Matthew 7:12

Do as you would be done by, is the surest method of pleasing.

Some of Vietnam's elite prepared for collapse

EDITOR'S NOTE: They were the ruling elite of Saigon for a decade. Then the Communists took over. In the second of two articles on the rich and powerful of South Vietnam, AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett writes of the life of sudden exile for South Vietnam's privileged senior officials and generals.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—Some South Vietnamese were more than ready for the collapse.

Gen. Trang Si Tan moved enough money abroad during his two years as Saigon's police chief to seriously consider several big business deals, including buying an old aircraft carrier for scrap metal and purchasing a Holiday Inn hotel at San Diego.

Some waited until the last minute.

A former corps commander and chief of staff of the army cleared his safe deposit boxes just a few hours before he left Saigon. He arrived at Fort Chaffee, Ark., with a million dollars in large bills in a suitcase. His young mistress ran off with the suitcase and a young lover, and the general spent a month in a military psychiatric ward while his friends tried unsuccessfully to get the money back.

Some reacted too late.

Several wealthy generals involved heavily in property in Vietnam, like the former vice president and air chief, Marshall Nguyen Cao Ky, who lost five tractors and other farm machinery when the Communists overran his 2,500-acre property in the Central Highlands. Ky said he brought out "only" $40,000 in cash.

Then there were those senior Vietnamese who arrived with nothing because they had nothing.

Three-star general Dong Van Khuyen, the last chief of staff of the South Vietnamese army, found work as a $180-a-week waiter at a seafood restaurant at Yorktown, Va. He sometimes serves U.S. military officers who used to advise him on running the 1.1 million-man Vietnamese armed forces.

The quality of the lives of Vietnamese officials in exile in America has come as no surprise to U.S. officials familiar with the Vietnam scene.

"The U.S. Embassy was always well aware about who was making big money in Saigon and who was relatively honest," said one official handling the refugee resettlement program in Washington D.C. "We went along with Vietnamese corruption as the price we paid for their loyalty."

None are surprised that while the last president of Vietnam, Nguyen Van Thieu, flits between his handsome homes in Taipei, London and the south of France, the last president of Cambodia, Sankam Khoy, eked out a modest existence with his son in Austin, Tex.

While former Vietnamese Vice Premier Nguyen Luu Vien, a physician, struggles at the University of Oklahoma at Norman, Okla., to be licensed to practice in America; the prime minister, Tran Thien Khiem, now a resident of Taipei, tries to decide which western country to settle in to better manage his business enterprises. He would prefer the U.S., his friends say, but only if he could move in quietly.

Some of the wealthier exiled generals — a total of 116 were evacuated from Saigon — are similarly concerned about adverse publicity and are trying to maintain a low profile.

They were shocked by the case of Gen. Dang Van Quang, a former corps commander in Vietnam who was fired for blatant corruption in the late 60s, and then returned to power as one of President Thieu's closest aides and reputed bag man. Quang was denied residence in the United States, and is currently fighting a deportation order from Canada.

Some generals linked with Quang in the past are discreetly settling in. But the wealth shines through. Gen. Cao Van Vien, formerly chief of the general staff headquarters in Saigon, whose wife was notorious in Saigon for her business dealings, purchased an $80,000 home in Virginia for a quiet retirement. His son, Cao Anh Dung, went public by soliciting gold from Vietnamese refugees, offering a higher price than Deak and Co Inc., the international money exchange, banking and investment concern.

Madame Vien's younger brother, Lt. Col. Tran Ngoc Tran, also living in Virginia, began driving a black Mercedes soon after arriving in the Washington D.C. area.

A close political adviser to President Thieu, Hoang Duc

Nha, has invested around $100,000 on a home and store specializing in oriental goods in Arlington, Va. Thieu had to fire Nha, his nephew, because of his unpopularity in Saigon, and Vietnamese living in the Washington area say they are boycotting his store.

Nha tells friends he doesn't care because all his business is from Americans living in the neighboring apartment buildings.

Not all the senior Vietnamese are living a life of luxury in the United States.

Gen. Pham Van Dong, one-time commander of the capital military district and a minister for veterans affairs, had two military aides in Saigon, three maids for his wife and five children, a cook, and three guards. Today in Arlington, Va., he drives his children to school himself while his wife does the housework, and lives "on a little money I put away."

Former corps commander Gen. Nguyen Van Minh lives rent-free in an apartment provided by a church group in New York's West 99th street, and earns enough "to live in dignity" in the accounting department of a New York trade book publisher. Minh's luxurious home in downtown Saigon had walls covered with jade-inlaid lacquer paintings, and rooms furnished with mother-of-pearl inlaid chairs and tables.

Other generals formerly with power and influence are reduced now to ordinary pursuits. Other generals are unemployed. Gen. Tran Van Minh, last commander of South Vietnam's air force, and now living near Sacramento, Calif., says he will take "almost any job." Brig. Gen. Pha Hoa Hiep, formerly a tank brigade commander, and minister of information shortly before Saigon fell, is living on food stamps at Ocala, Fla.

The last commander of the South Vietnamese navy moved into the basement of the home of the former chief of U.S. naval operations Elmo Zumwalt.

The Doctor Says:

A wise doctor keeps borderline diabetic on diet

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— I am borderline diabetic, 52 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weigh about 134 pounds. The doctor wants me to get down to 130. The latest glucose reading, without medication, on a restricted diet in the hospital was 143. Now I am on a 2000 calorie diet and find that I am so stuffed. I got permission to cut down but to keep the diet balanced. With an underactive thyroid wouldn't this be one reason I find losing weight so hard? I take 1 mg of Synthroid daily.

DEAR READER— Your doctor is very wise in helping you to lose weight. Many mild diabetics can be controlled by diet alone, and that usually means eliminating any excess obesity and keeping the fat off thereafter.

Unfortunately, 2000 calories a day is too much for many women. You can have a balanced diet and get down to 1200 calories a day, if you need to, in order to lose weight.

I would like to add a word of caution. Diabetics should never go on a diet without their doctor's permission. That is especially true if the diabetic is taking insulin or medicine to lower the blood glucose. The insulin requirements are balanced against the amount of food you eat. If you cut down on your food you usually need to cut down on your insulin.

A borderline diabetic not on medicine does not have this problem.

A similar situation exists regarding exercise, but is more often neglected. Exercise burns up calories and lowers blood sugar. Unusual exercise may decrease the insulin requirements or increase the food requirements to avoid an insulin reaction. A diabetic needs to live a fairly regulated life if he is to use a regular, constant amount of medicine for his blood sugar.

A regular exercise program will help you with your diet program. The whole idea is to have a daily negative balance of calories, in other words to spend more than you take in—deficit spending, if you will. There are two sides to the coin on doing that. One is to limit your calorie intake, and the other is to increase your calorie use, and exercise helps with the latter.

A low thyroid function will decrease the amount of calories that your body will use at rest. This will make losing weight more difficult. For other readers I hasten to add that many people who are overweight have normal thyroids and that is usually not the problem.

When you take a thyroid medicine it will supplement the amount of thyroid hormone formed by your own gland. If you are taking enough then you should really have normal thyroid function. Incidentally, excess thyroid hormone can lead to elevated blood sugar levels, so can a variety of medicines, including diuretics used to eliminate fluid before menstrual periods and in treatment of high blood pressure or for any fluid retention problem. BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Though the Americans had long sought a means of reducing British influence in West Florida and indeed had made a feeble attempt in 1778 to do so, it was left to the Spanish to threaten the center of British power at Fort George at Pensacola. Spain had allied herself with France and in June 1779, declared war against Great Britain. In August of that year, under the leadership of Bernardo de Galvez, Governor of Louisiana, Spanish forces captured the British outposts on the lower Mississippi River. The World Almanac notes.

MAJOR COLLEGE HIGHLIGHTS

Elimination time has arrived, so it's time to put all the marbles on the line in at least three conferences ... no, make it four.

California and Stanford share the lead with UCLA in the Pacific 8 Conference, and the Bears and Indians will settle the problem in Stanford Saturday. Michigan hosts Ohio State in the Big Ten "Finals," and in the Big 8, where the Big Game has been tarnished a bit by Oklahoma's upset loss to Kansas, the Sooners take on Nebraska.

And ... Harvard meets Yale in a game that will decide the championship of the Ivy League.

We stare at these season-ending traditional games every year and realize that to pick a winner, one must throw out power quotients, games won and lost, tea leaves, and crystal balls. Sometimes the easiest way to pick the winners is to just put the names of all the teams on the wall and throw darts!

Even though the game is in Ann Arbor, it's difficult to go against the Ohio State Buckeyes. Michigan leads the series, but in recent years it's been all Ohio State. The Bucks will win the game by seven points and with it the Big Ten title.

California-Stanford is almost too close to call ... we'd like to say "pick 'em." This is the final game for both teams, but the Rose Bowl representative won't be known until after UCLA meets Southern Cal on Nov. 28. The Indians will squeeze out a tough one-point win over the Cal Bears.

The Big Eight "Biggie" will be played in Norman, Oklahoma, where the Sooners' long winning streak recently came to an end. The dart please! The winner ... top-ranked Nebraska will do it, and the spread is eight points.

In the "Football-For-Fun" conference—the Ivy League—Harvard is a 2-point choice over Yale for the league championship. Also in the East, Penn State is a five-point favorite over upset-minded Pittsburgh.

Through all games as of Saturday, Nov. 8, we're 1,426 up, 440 down, and there have been 40 ties. The average, .764.

What, Missouri still No. 10? They certainly are ... all four losses have been to teams ranked ahead of them, Michigan, Colorado, Nebraska, and Oklahoma. What a schedule!!

BOB HARMON PREDICTS THE PROS SUNDAY, NOV. 23

Miami 35

QB Bert Jones and Colts have become surprising upstarts in AFC East. Dolphins, leading the division with fantastic offensive show, at home after road battle in Houston.

Los Angeles 28

NFC West Division leaders entertain struggling Bears.
L.A.'s defensive prowess denied by upset loss to 49ers two weeks ago. Chicago beat GB same day. Could be one-sided.

Cincinnati 24

Bengals started Browns on long losing streak back in season opener, 24-17. With heated race in AFC Central, Cincy can't afford to take Cleveland lightly. 14-point spread.

Denver 17

Broncos came so close to knocking off Cincinnati in snow in Denver two weeks ago, losing 17-16. Still only favored by four points over the troubled home-standing Falcons.

Kansas City 30

Lions doing well with No. 3 QB Joe Reed. Both teams trying to keep within firing range of division leaders. Chiefs surprised Cowboys in wild Monday night game two weeks ago.

Buffalo 31

Since racing to 4-0 record at start of season, Bills have lost more than they've won. Only five games left of season ...
underdog Patriots could be big thorn at wrong time.

New York Giants 20

Giants should be solid seven (if there is such a term in pro football!) point favorites over NFC Central Basement-Dwelling Packers. NY almost upset Redskins two weeks ago.

Baltimore 21

Today's perplexer! As of now, availability of Skin QB Billy Kilmer unknown. Raiders must win here to prove they're still strong club after recent wins over weak teams.

Chicago 10

Small investor is not overlooked by SEC

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has lots of things to worry about these days, but be reassured it has not overlooked its role as protector of the small investor.

The watchdog of federal securities laws and regulations has just come out with a new edition of "Investigate Before You Invest," a little booklet of basic advice that it is now offering free to investors.

"Before buying ... Think!" advises the SEC. "Don't listen to high-pressure sales talk," it adds. And, "Don't buy on tips and rumors."

If those caveats sound a bit dated for these days of super-cautious if not necessarily more sophisticated investors, there's a reason: Much of the text was written years ago, and a new cover applied this year.

Nevertheless the SEC believes the warnings are worthwhile, just as they were in the 1960s, when millions of new and naive investors flocked into the stock market.

It's a bit different today. Brokers' phones don't ring all day long as they used to. Hundreds of them have gone out of business. Institutions often dominate trade, with the small investor more observant than active.

In fact, the number of investors has diminished, after increasing sharply throughout the 1960s and early 1970s. For the first time in more than 20 years, the New York Stock Exchange estimates, the number of shareholders fell in 1974, and maybe again this year.

Regardless, some of the advice seems to have a merit other than that of nostalgia. Any oldtimer will tell you that the same mistakes are made over and over, especially when people feel they no longer need advice.

With that preface, the SEC's admonitions:

—Before you decide whether to buy securities, check your financial situation. Have you made provisions for a home? Do you have adequate life insurance? A comfortable bank account balance?

—If you decide to go ahead and buy securities, keep in mind that the value of your investment can go down as well as up. No one can guarantee the market price of a security in a month or a year from now.

—Give at least as much consideration to buying securities as you would to buying other valuable property. An engraved stock certificate of a bankrupt company is just as impressive looking as that of a blue chip.

Reliable information is available on all heavily traded securities. Tell the salesperson to put all the information and advice in writing and mail it to you, and then save the information.

—If you're an average investor — the SEC offers no clues to the identity of average — don't speculate. Speculation sometimes may serve a useful purpose, but it is a field for experts. The amateur who "plays the market" is asking for trouble.

If you feel you are one of those who can benefit from a reminder of the basics, you may obtain a free copy of "Investigate Before You Invest" from: Consumer Information, Dept. 70, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

ABC tries different things

EDITORS NOTE: In the $315-million-a-year business of TV sports, ABC has not been reluctant to try things a little different. In the third installment of a four-part series, the ABC approach and the philosophy of its leader is examined.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody in the trade knows that it's the little woman in the house who controls the television set—that is, except on Saturday and Sunday afternoons when the tube is the full domain of the males.

It took Boone Arledge of ABC to defy this deeply-embedded tradition with a unique concept called Monday night football.

With the three networks boosting their sports lineups to more than 1,000 hours and $300 million in revenues a year, there ensued a mad scramble for new franchises and new leagues plus million-dollar bonuses and salaries for the athletes.

Now ABC is going to wed Monday night with baseball in 1976, as part of its participation in a new $92.8 million contract with baseball.

Some observers are skeptical. After all, almost every football game has impact on the title races. Baseball drags on for months and the importance of games doesn't begin to jell until late summer. Arledge is convinced he can make prime-time baseball go, just as he did with football.

"It will need a different approach. It will take personalities and planning but it can succeed," insists Arledge.

Herb Granath, ABC vice president in charge of sports programming, said, "Nobody thought Monday night football was possible. Women may have been dragged in, kicking and screaming, but they were brought in. Most of them stayed."

Monday night football is one of the phenomena of network TV. The rival networks brought out their heaviest artillery to try to sink it, but failed. "This has been our best season ever," says Granath.

"It is not just a football game, it is an event," insists Arledge.

True. It is one-third football and two-thirds flak. It is more Howard Cosell than Bob Griese and O.J. Simpson. It entertains. It irritates. It sells.

Monday night football suffered a slight decline in 1974, as did most sports generally, but rebounded this season although CBS threw in top-rated "All in the Family" to join "Rhoda" and "Phyllis" on the enemy firing line. NBC continued to hit back with topflight movies, even tossing the $12-million "Godfather" against Cosell, piloted by Alex Karras and straightman Frank Gifford last year.

CBS continues to have an edge in the ratings for that time slot with ABC second and NBC third, but Monday night football with a 37 share of the audience (compared with CBS' 42) is said to have damaged Archie Bunker and Marlon Brando more than it got hurt itself.

While Madison Avenue trend-watchers wonder how long the cascade of revenue dollars can continue in this climate of tight money and escalating costs, Arledge strikes a posture of disarming confidence.

"Nineteen seventy-six will be our biggest year ever," he says. "Ultimately I think we will have 500 hours of network sports and $215 million in revenues."

ABC not only jumps into the baseball picture for the first time but has exclusive national rights to both the Winter and Summer Olympics.

The network paid $40 million for the Summer Games at Montreal and $22 million for the Winter Games at Innsbruck. Both are sold out.

ABC pulled a coup in breaking NBC's baseball monopoly and reportedly will pay the bigger share—$50 million—in the four-year, $92.8-million contract because of the Monday prime time. Under the sharing arrangement, ABC also gets the league playoffs and All-Star game next year while NBC hosts the World Series.

In addition, ABC will continue its near dominance of the major golf events, showing the U.S. and British Opens, the American PGA and the U.S. Women's Open. CBS clings to the Masters, but Arledge won't be content until he nabs that one, also.

Arledge has not been eager to get on the tennis bandwagon as have his rivals at CBS and NBC. "You hear tennis talked a lot at lunch and the country clubs," he says, "but I don't think people are watching it. They'd rather watch wrestling."

At the same time, Arledge has not been reluctant to cram his screen with oddball events such as demolition derbies, arm-wrestling, rope-walking and barrel-jumping on his prize baby, "Wide World of Sports."

Most of it is taped and lacking in spot appeal, but Granath, discussing the Saturday and Sunday feature, insists, "We still pick and choose. The sponsor dollar is still there but is selective. We find these special events very attractive."

"In fact, when Evel Knievel jumped over those 14 buses—live—we had the highest rating of any show yet, a 52 share of the audience."

Arledge, 45, grew up in New York, attended Columbia University and worked for NBC six years before joining ABC in 1960 as producer of college telecasts.

His rise has been swift. He was named vice president in charge of sports in 1964 and given the title of president in 1968. An aggressive, enterprising operator, he apparently has his sights set on higher things.

He promoted a Frank Sinatra show at Madison Square Garden for prime television and now is producing "Saturday Night Live With Howard Cosell," a variety show. They may rise or fall on the same star.

Tarkenton goes for two NFL records on Sunday

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two teams headed in opposite directions on the National Football League's elevator will be passing each other this week and those will be passes, not floors that Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton is counting against San Diego.

Tarkenton needs just 14 pass completions to set an NFL career record, wiping out the mark of 2,830 set by Johnny Unitas. He is also only seven TD passes shy of Unitas' career record of 290.

The 14 completions seem within reach Sunday — he completed 25 a week ago against New Orleans. The seven TD passes ... well, those will be the wireless Chargers on the other side of the field Sunday.

On Fran's side will be the Vikings, the NFL's only unbeaten team with nine consecutive victories, a team he has directed to 42 victories in their last 57 games and into two Super Bowls.

"He's the best quarterback around as far as we're concerned and he may be getting better," said Coach Bud Grant. As for Tarkenton, he's excited about reaching the record book in his 15th NFL season.

"I've always thought of Unitas as the greatest quarterback who ever lived and it's a tremendous thrill to be approaching his records," the Viking passer said. The Chargers, however, won't be thrilled — just victimized.

The Pro Picker wasn't thrilled, just satisfied, with last week's 9-4. He'll try to improve the season log of 85-32 for .726 this week.

The picks:

Minnesota 35, San Diego 10
Tarkenton won't throw seven TDs against the Chargers but three or four isn't out of the question for Minnesota's marvelous quarterback. His accomplishments this season have overshadowed Chuck Foreman, who leads the NFC in rushing with 643 yards, in pass receptions with 46, and in touchdowns with 11.

Oakland 24, Washington 21
The Redskins are coming off last week's controversial loss to St. Louis (Did Mel Gray catch the ball, or didn't he?) and have fallen one game back of the Cardinals in the NFC East. The Raiders, meanwhile, have won four straight and are three games in front in the AFC West. Washington needs this game more but may not be over the psychological scars of last Sunday.

Los Angeles 27, Chicago 7
The Rams' front four is on a rampage with 25 quarterback sacks this season. That's bad news for the Bears and passer Gary Huff, who've had little good news this year.

Miami 23, Baltimore 14
The Colts score a lot of points, which is good. But they also give up a lot, which is not so good, especially against a team like Miami. Baltimore has averaged 40 points per game stringing together four straight victories. But the Dolphins' defense won't be that permissive.

St. Louis 34, N.Y. Jets 10
Question: Will a new coach shake up the Jets? Answer: No. This team, whose players fight among themselves and then fold up against the other club, needs more than a new boss to straighten things out. The Cardinals, meanwhile, are in first place in the NFC East and aim to stay there.

Buffalo 23, New England 20
The Bills are dragging and the Patriots are beginning to put things together. But how can you pick against O.J. at home?

Denver 24, Atlanta 7
The Broncos have been stripped by injuries and no longer are the title threat they seemed to be before the season started. But they've got enough to handle Atlanta. Denver will get no sympathy from the Falcons, who lost more players and could afford it less.

Kansas City 27, Detroit 17
The Lions' 6-3 record is a hoax. They're just not that good ... are they? Meanwhile, Kansas City seemed to be getting things straightened out after a horrendous start. Pick the Chiefs, because you have to pick somebody.

Cincinnati 33, Cleveland 7
Dear Pete: Would it be all right if the Browns just forfeited this one? What's one more loss when you've already dropped all nine games you've played. And a team could get hurt against the bruising Bengals, who are tied for the AFC Central lead.

S. Francisco 14, N. Orleans 3
Steve Spurrier has passed the 49ers to two straight victories since taking over at quarterback. The Saints are playing out the schedule ... but haven't they been doing that for years?

Dallas 24, Philadelphia 7
The Cowboys need a victory to stay close in the NFC East and the obliging Eagles aren't likely to stand in their way. Dallas, the Eagles will discover, are more of a football team than the Giants' squad they whipped last week.

Green Bay 21, N.Y. Giants 10
A matchup of two losers. The difference is that the Packers occasionally display a semblance of an offense — something the Giants haven't had in years.

Pittsburgh 24, Houston 17
This will be some show with the Oilers one game back of the Steelers and Bengals in the AFC Central race. Some people are tempted to pick the underdog Oilers, who have come so far in so short a time. We'll stick with the money team from Pittsburgh, who beat Houston without Joe Greene in their first meeting and will repeat with him this time.

Which of these luxury cars has front-wheel drive, the most trunk space, the best gas mileage, and costs half as much?

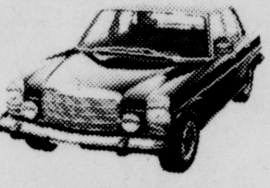

JAGUAR XJ6

CADILLAC SEVILLE

AUDI 100LS

MERCEDES 280

The answer is obvious, once you know a few facts.

First, although all four cars handle well, only the Audi 100LS has front-wheel drive, the system that gives you better crosswind and tracking stability.

Second, although all four cars are medium-sized luxury sedans, the Audi has the most trunk space.

Third, the Audi is the only one with CIS fuel injection. It gets by far the greater gas mileage — estimated EPA tests indicate a terrific 30 miles per gallon on the highway and 20 miles per gallon in the city.

Fourth, despite its elegance (the Audi's interior, with its orthopedically-designed reclining seats, is so similar to the Mercedes it's uncanny) the 100LS costs thousands less than the others, virtually half as much.

Of course, we could go on piling up the superlatives about the features of the Audi 100LS.

But we feel it's not necessary. The four facts we've just mentioned are enough to answer your questions.

The answer is Audi

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-629: Opal G., aged 20, is a college science major. "Dr. Crane," she asked, "many college professors nowadays uncritically accept evolution as a proved fact."

"They seem to think that all forms of life originated in the oceans and then evolved from an ameba into more complex life."

"But similarity of structure doesn't necessarily mean one form evolved from the other, does it?"

Science Fads
Scientists often become "goose-steppers" and thus stampede in support of any glib Harvard or Yale professor.

Our Food & Drug Administration demonstrates similar faddism, for a few years ago, it vetoed cranberries just before Thanksgiving and thus bankrupted many cranberry farmers.

Shortly thereafter, however, it lamely admitted we could drink a barrel of cranberry juice without any harmful effects.

The current feud over DDT, as well as the sudden veto of cyclamates, and now the backtracking regarding use of nitrous oxide (laughing gas), show the vacillation of scientists.

Because a frame house resembles a dog kennel, doesn't mean the house evolved from the dog kennel!

Same applies to animals, for certain physical laws of dynamics simply prove that muscles fastened to bones permit greater movement, whether of a fish or man!

And if evolution is to explain mankind, how does it happen that Jesus wasn't duplicated millions of times in His generation?

For if evolution produced the millions of Chinese, plus millions of Caucasians, millions of foxes and millions of all other species, why wasn't Jesus also produced by the million?

And if you believe He was only 50 per cent human plus 50 per cent divine, then His divine 50 per cent wasn't a matter of evolution but a sudden intervention in man's normal procreation by an outside source!

If God could thus intervene in human affairs at the time the Virgin Mary conceived, then why couldn't He just as easily have done so in the Garden of Eden and thus have made Adam and Eve in that earthly paradise?

Or imported them from a distant inhabited planet via a space ship?

It is even possible that a Chinese "Adam and Eve" might have been installed in Asia at the same time the Biblical Adam and Eve were placed in the Euphrates-watered Garden of Eden.

In fact, a Negro couple could likewise have been simultaneously "planted" in a fertile African valley.

Then the Wise Men sitting around God's Roundtable might have watched to see what differences in agriculture invention and other scientific accomplishments the different "implanted" couples could produce throughout the following centuries.

And to give you a breathless glimpse at this universe, Dr. Hart Armstrong in the May, 1975, Defender magazine mentions the fact that the Hale Telescope on Mt. Palomar shows a MILLION galaxies just inside the cup of the Big Dipper!

And Dr. Carl Sagan, Cornell astronomer, in the May 19, 1975, issue of U.S. News & World Report said:

"In the Milky Way galaxy there are 250 billion stars."

Our sun is just ONE of those 250,000,000,000 Milky Way stars, so don't try to restrict God's power to accidental changes in a microscopic ameba!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Help somebody back to life!

For Saturday, Nov. 22, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It will be difficult to get your mate and those around you to share your natural enthusiasm today. Subdue your ardor. Do what's best for all.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You try to spread yourself too thin today. Keep in mind: It is better to do one thing well than to attempt everything and accomplish nothing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It could be a tough day on your budget. If you run out of cash, you'll regret giving that credit card more use than is prudent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In your haste to please you may act against your best judgment and harm your own interests. Better to risk offending than to create frustrations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hunches are prone to override your usually logical perspective. At times this could be fine. Today, your intuition isn't all that great.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you can't keep a tight rein on your purse strings today, don't wonder later what happened. It will be too late.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your image is more important to you than fleeting glory. Don't do something for temporary fame that could bring lasting notoriety.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Responsibility is normally your cup of tea, but today if you can only let George do it, you'll probably be just as happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You tend to be a trifle careless with the possessions of others today. If you borrow something and break or lose it, it's your baby.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Though it seems simpler to you today, letting others make decisions for you is a mistake. You'll get the short end of the stick.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your intentions are good, but the flesh is weak today. You'll procrastinate, do the job poorly and have to do it again.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid financial flyers today, especially those involving others. Advising associates poorly will cause long-standing resentments.

Your Birthday
Nov. 22, 1975

Don't change your methods of operation this coming year on a project you've been nursing along for some time. Chances of a payoff for you are better with proven procedures.

Dear Friends,
Thank you for making our first year in business such an overwhelming success. We had no idea when we started last November with one truck and two employees that our growth would be as fast as it has been.

We believed in offering the good people of this area a service that they would need, but your instant response has just strengthened our commitment to offering even bigger and better services including the employment of skilled carpenters and cabinet makers among our present 16 employees. Again we say Thanks for the acceptance of our new business and promise continued if not even better service to you in the future.

ATTENTION DEALERS & COLLECTORS

Midwest's largest antique mail order dealer buying complete estates or antique collections for CASH. D. Shiaras's Question and Answer Period On Antiques has been read weekly by millions of readers around the world for over a decade. D. Shiaras, Route 3, Box 66, Grand Detour, Illinois 61021. Phone 652-4278.

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD

QUESTION—Mr. Shiaras, we understand that antiques sell relatively cheap at small mid-western country auctions. Is this true?
ANSWER—No! The prices have gotten out of hand. Many dealer friends refuse to attend. This week an R.S. Prussia chocolate set brought over $400. When the bidding got that high the lady standing next to me thought they were selling the real estate! She had every right to think as she did.

QUESTION—Mr. Shiaras, I have been thinking of posing you a question. Mr. D., are you a businessman first? Are you an antique lover first? Are you a frustrated author first? I find this week's January Trader gave me the answer. You have No. 6 a $75 lamp from December 14 Trader January sale priced at $189.99!!! Write on Mr. BUSINESSMAN.

ANSWER—Dear R.S., In this business we need to see an analyst occasionally but they are so expensive. A simple typing error cleared all my anxieties and frustrations gratis. Thank you very much! ©

might keep you from buying a new home.

But a low price shouldn't.

A Wausau Home costs thousands of dollars less than comparable homes. Because of the way we buy materials and the efficiency of our controlled building system.

For example, every Wausau Home is built with the finest grade kiln-dried lumber. 100% copper plumbing. Real ceramic tile walls and floors in the bath. We buy the very best and we buy in quantity. Which lowers the price, not the quality.

And we build under the very best conditions, indoors, out of the weather. Stop by for a close look at a Wausau Home. But don't let our low prices scare you. That shouldn't keep you from buying the new home you want.
